Road Inquiry

ment was made to Kimble for "miscellaneous contract."

Brown said Cone Brothers' petty cash fund was used to handle "small things we wouldn't write a check for" and usually contained about $2000.

The subcommittee's chief investigator said Cone Brothers had done about $30,000,000 of road contracting business since Jan. 1, 1956.

Chairman John A. Blatnik (Dem.)—Minnesota, said at the beginning of the hearing, that the "federal government must have every assurance that the state is staffing highway projects being built with federal aid with personnel having both the capability and fortitude to enforce specifications and contract provisions."

Blatnik said it was beginning to look as if the giant, federally subsidized road system now being built might be riddled with mismanagement and graft.

"It seems that almost every time we punch through the crust," he declared, "we find the pudding of either corruption or mismanagement."

Blatnik said "any demonstrated weakness at this critical point has a deleterious effect on the entire program."

"It is at this particular stage that both the Federal Government and the state either do, or do not, get proper return for the money invested," he said.

Blatnik said that "safeguards are essential to prevent the intrusion of factors likely to sway the free exercise of proper judgment by those whose duty it is to supervise effectively any and all stages of construction."

He said the investigations "will inquire into the relationship existing between certain contractors doing business in Florida and certain state personnel who supervised their work."

Study in Other States.

The subcommittee has made tentative investigations into assorted highway problems in Massachusetts, Georgia, West Virginia, Montana, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

A subcommittee spokesman said a number of contractors in addition to Cone Brothers would be called on to explain why state employees were showered with gifts.

"We know officials were given money and other stuff," the investigator said. "The question is, what did the contractors expect in return?"

The subcommittee spokesman said the Bureau of Public Roads was running tests on the quality of highway construction in certain areas in Florida.

By the Associated Press.

Witnesses testified at a state legislative investigating committee hearing in October that undercover payments were made by Cone Brothers to state engineers supervising contracts held by the firm.

Cone Brothers later was suspended by the state from eligibility to bid on state roads contracts. The firm contended, however, that it did first-rate work on all contracts.

$6000 FOR TREE OF LIGHTS

Contributions totaling $6000 have been received by the Salvation Army in its annual Tree of Lights campaign for the purchase of Christmas presents and baskets for needy families, it was reported today.

The silver tree at Eighth and Olive streets now has 60 of its 500 lights burning. Each light represents $100 in the drive's $50,000 goal. The drive began last Monday.

MAN HURT IN 20-FOOT FALL

John Prusacki, 2627 Allen avenue, suffered head injuries and fractures of both wrists yesterday afternoon when he fell about 20 feet when washing a second floor window at his home. Prusacki, 44 years old, a machine operator, was taken to City Hospital.

tary, Bernard Salumu, and Lumumba's younger brother, Louis. They have cut off communications with the rest of the Congo and have threatened to declare Oriental province an independent state in reprisal for Lumumba's arrest.

Mobutu said the United Arab Republic and Sudan reached a secret agreement recently to give all possible help to the Gizenga group.

(United Press International said United Nations troops were trying to end a battle between Congolese soldiers and civilian supporters of Lumumba in Kilwit, 250 miles east of Leopoldville. Reports reaching here said two days of fighting had taken 13 lives.

(Daphne Parks, second secretary at the British embassy was slapped by Congolese soldiers when she arrived at the Stanleyville airfield on a diplomatic mission and one soldier unzipped her dress.

(Soldiers invaded a Stanleyville Catholic church yesterday, rounded up the congregation and the priest and ran them at gunpoint 100 yards in the blazing sun.

(Despite the airport incident, Miss Parks demanded and got permission to visit the prison to see if any British citizens were being held. She found none.)

In Accra, Ghana broke off diplomatic relations with Belgium today, charging the Brussels government with being responsible for "the recent developments in the Congo."

Belgian Ambassador Gerard

Walravens was ordered to leave the country within 48 hours.

President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana regards Congo President Joseph Kasavubu as pro-Belgian, if not actually directed by Belgian advisers. Kasavubu declared Ghana's Charge d'Affaires, Nathaniel Welbeck, persona non grata (unwelcome) in October.

Last month troops of Col. Mobutu attacked Ghana's Embassy residence and forced Welbeck to leave the Congo.

In Brussels, Katanga's president Tshombe today accused the Belgian Government, which has refused to recognize his declaration of independence from the Congo, of following a policy of "indiscipline, obtuseness and partiality."

He spoke at a reception at the headquarters of the Katanga mission in Brussels a few hours after flying in with the avowed aim of giving King Baudouin a wedding present. The King is to marry Fabiola de Mora y Aragon, daughter of a Spanish nobleman, Dec. 15.

Tshombe said he made the trip to meet Belgian friends of Katanga and to show his respect "toward King Baudouin and the Belgian dynasty, who have always expressed solicitude toward Katanga."

Belgian authorities denied that the visit of Tshombe has any political or official character. Among the throng that welcomed him on arrival were his wife and children who have been in Belgium for some time.

Tshombe is expected to spend at least a week in Belgium. His Belgian press secretary said the president will meet with Belgian business men.

FARM PESTICIDES FOUND MAJOR CAUSE OF FISH KILLS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (UPI)—The Public Health Service said yesterday that results of a nation-wide stream and lake pollution study indicate that agricultural pesticides outrank industrial wastes as fish killers.

The service said first reports from 31 states showed that, of 185 pollution-caused fish-kills, 73 were caused by agricultural poisons.

Other fish killers included, in order: industrial wastes, 57; domestic sewage, 15; a total of 17 caused by pipeline breaks, shipping pollution and other causes, while 28 occurred for undetermined reasons.

civilian control over military establishment. It would strengthen the hand of the Secretary of Defense. It would increase his capacity for instantaneous response to military emergencies by cutting out the bureaucratic layers that now exist at the Pentagon."

Consolidation Proposals.

The plan would consolidate a number of functions now performed individually by each of the services. Functions that would be consolidated include research and engineering, procurement and production, and supervision and establishment of installations.

There would be a consolidated directorate created to handle each of these functions for all the military services.

The directorates would operate under the supervision of one of two new positions of Under Secretary of Defense which would be created by the plan. The man filling that post would be known as Under Secretary for Weapons Systems.

Establishment of the combined directorates under his supervision would make possible abolition of seven present positions of assistant defense secretaries, Symington said.

The other new post would be known as Under Secretary for Administration. Under direction of the official in that post would come all business functions, including financial, legal, information, legislative, transportation, communication and other-related matters. He would be, in effect, a "business manager for all the armed forces," Symington said.

Degree of Separation. The present departmental structure of the Army, Navy and Air Force would be eliminated although the services would be preserved as separate organizations within the Defense Department.

Each service would retain responsibility for logistic and administrative support of military functions. The operating head of each service, however, would be its military chief instead of a civilian secretary, as at present.

Each military service chief would report directly to the Secretary of Defense. "We would thus concentrate civilian control at one level instead of two," Symington said.

He said the study committee felt that it was difficult to subordinate service interests to the national interest as long as civilian secretaries are retained for each independent service.

The plan would eliminate five positions in each service—those of the Secretary, the Under Secretary and three assistant secretaries—for a total of 15. The other seven positions to be abolished are those of assistant secretaries of defense, whose functions would be assimilated by proposed Under Secretary of Defense for Weapons Systems and his three subordinate directorates.

Defense Secretary's Power. Symington said the plan proposed by his committee "would give the Secretary of Defense unquestioned authority and control over all elements of the Pentagon at all levels."

"This," he went on, "is its most important accomplishment."

A significant change in the top military chain of command would result from the proposed organization. Authority would extend in a direct line from the President to the Secretary of Defense and then to the Chairman of the Joint Staff. The chairman would occupy the position now held by the combined Joint Chiefs of Staff as chief military adviser to the President.

In addition he would preside over the proposed new military advisory council. Symington said the exact size and composition of the council were not spelled out by the study committee.

The senior officers who would compose the council, he said, would leave their individual service when appointed to the council and would not return to their service positions. The purpose, he explained, was to relieve them of pressure from their own services so they could more easily make decisions based on over-all security needs.

New Legislation Possibility. Symington said legislation might be required to establish the new office.

The three commands proposed in the report would establish unified military commands to handle functions now performed by such agencies as the Strategic Air Command and Tactical Air Command. Symington said the present commands are not unified.

The new agencies would consist of a strategic command to direct retaliation in event of general nuclear war; a tactical command to deal with limited warfare, and a defense command with responsibility for defense of the United States.

Symington expressed the personal view that the strategic command should be headed by a Navy officer, the tactical unit by an Army officer and the defense command by an Air Force officer.

If additional commands are needed, he said, they could be established under the plan.

There would be, in effect, a fourth command consisting of the National Guard, military reserves and civilian defense organizations, Symington added.

He placed great emphasis on the new position of assistant secretary of defense for arms control which the plan envisions.

"Except for the Presidency itself," he stated, "whoever is going to handle the whole problem of arms control in the years ahead may have the most important job in government."

As the Post-Dispatch reported last month, in an interview with Symington, the Missouri Senator conceived of this position as one that would assist in disarmament negotiations.

The proposal for making all military appropriations directly to the Defense Department instead of to the individual military services would further emphasize the role of the services. Funds presumably could be shifted among the military forces at the will of the Defense Secretary.

Symington said the plan contemplated making some military appropriations on a "multi-year" basis. This, he added, would make possible better planning and programming than is possible under the present system of yearly appropriations.

The proposal would require also the Secretary of Defense to justify in advance appropriations he requests for development of new weapons systems. Such justifications are required now for expenditures for military housing and installations.

Legislative Study.

Symington said it was not known what parts of the program would require legislation and what parts could be put into effect by executive order. An analysis of this point is being made now, he stated.

Symington said the report was agreed to unanimously by the committee. One member, Leva, filed a reservation to one recommendation, although agreeing there was need for drastic reduction in the military secretariat. Leva said in a footnote, he felt "several additional" under secretaries of defense were needed to assist the Secretary of Defense.

The objectives of the changes proposed in the report as outlined today by Symington were identical with the major goals of defense reorganization that he listed in last month's interview with the Post-Dispatch.

Those were to reduce the long lead time required for developing new weapons concepts and systems from the point of origination to usability and to curtail the possibility that military decisions are made on the basis of services, rather than national, interest.

Emphasizing the need for speed in military preparations, Symington observed, "In any previous war that we have been in, we had at least 18 months to prepare. In case we get into any future war, we would be lucky to have 18 minutes."

Other objectives, he said, were to provide a closer relationship between research and development and to eliminate the "two-hat" problem faced by members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff who must report both to the secretary of their own service and to the Secretary of Defense.

'Security With Solvency.' In an effort to summarize the committee's view of the task it faced, Symington said:

"We believe that because our problem fundamentally can be summed up—maybe if you can sum it up at all—as security with solvency, that we have to be careful to try to utilize to the fullest our human resources and our material resources. The basic problem is to avoid the delay incident to waste and to avoid waste, per se."

"In this connection, therefore, we would like to minimize the layers of control which are now in the department, the overlapping which is so characteristic now, and the increasing rivalry in the services which, in effect, is the result of each service trying to place itself in a position where it could wage any future war if this country was attacked, by itself."

In estimating savings that could be achieved through defense reorganization, Symington indicated that much of this money, in his opinion, should be plowed back into military expenditures to strengthen the country's position.

Symington's Future.

Asked whether he was interested in the position of Secretary of Defense in the Kennedy administration, Symington restated his previous assertion that he felt he could be of more use in the Senate than in the cabinet.

Symington brought the committee's plan to Palm Beach this morning from Key Biscayne, Fla., where he has been vacationing.

Kennedy, who has been at Palm Beach since Friday, left this afternoon for Washington in his private plane. He was accompanied by Symington.

Yesterday, Kennedy announced appointment of a 10-member committee to prepare a federal program for spurring economic growth in areas of chronic unemployment. Senator Paul Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, will head the group. Kennedy said he hopes the committee will hold its first meeting next week.

The President-elect said selection of the committee was the first step toward carrying out a campaign pledge he made in West Virginia. Kennedy promised that if elected he would within 60 days send legislation to Congress to aid areas of high unemployment.

In announcing appointment of the Douglas committee, Kennedy indicated that it is to draft a program that will aid other depressed areas as well as West Virginia.

The President-elect said he has asked the committee to begin work immediately on "a federal program to spur economic growth in areas of chronic unemployment, encourage new job opportunities there, remove the handicaps to full development of our industrial potential and stimulate investment in new industry."

In addition to West Virginia, other areas listed by Kennedy as needing similar assistance included southern Illinois and parts of Kentucky, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Minnesota.

Beside Douglas, other members of the committee include Michael F. Widman, assistant to the president of the United Mine Workers, and William L. Batt, Jr., Pennsylvania State Secretary of Labor and Industry.

West Virginia members of the committee are Miles C. Stanley, president of the State Labor Federation there; Don B. Potter, president of the Monongahela Power Co.; Burl A. Sawyers, former state highway commissioner; Wayne Fletcher, Chesapeake & Ohio railway official; Clyde L. Colson, dean of the West Virginia University law school; Lawrence E. Tierney, Jr., president of the West Virginia Coal Association, and Harry Hoffman, editor of the Charleston Gazette.

Appointments in Offing.

It was forecast today by well-informed sources that Kennedy intends to appoint Representative Stuart Udall of Arizona to be Secretary of the Interior. The announcement may be made Wednesday in New York.

Udall's appointment was predicted last week when he conferred with Kennedy in Washington.

There also were reports that Kennedy would offer a position to Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential candidate in 1952 and 1956. Speculation centered on the post of United States representative to the United Nations.

However, sources in the Kennedy camp insisted that Stevenson had not been eliminated as a possible candidate for Secretary of State.

Both Stevenson and Representative Chester Bowles of Connecticut were reported still to be under consideration for top-ranking positions in the State Department.

By the Associated Press.

At the United Nations, Kennedy was reported to have arranged to see U.N. Under-Secretary Ralph J. Bunche on a visit to New York later this week.

The report, which Bunche would not confirm or deny, led to speculation that Kennedy might offer a key position in the new administration to the Negro diplomat. Bunche is the highest ranking American in the U.N. secretariat and a winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.

SHOP THAT PRINTED MILLION IN BOGUS BILLS IS RAIDED

NEWARK, N.J., Dec. 5 (AP)—A small printing shop, raided in Union City, had turned out a million dollars in counterfeit $20 bills, the Secret Service office disclosed here today. Three men were arrested as a result of the raid Saturday night.

Frank B. Wood, chief of the secret service office in Newark, said the counterfeit bills were circulated along the eastern seaboard from Boston to Miami, Fla. He said $200,000 of the counterfeit money was still in circulation.

The print shop was owned by Harold S. Williamson, who was arrested and held in $25,000 bail. Also arrested were Richard Miclitz, Cassville, and John Wayawotcki of Jersey City.

Crime

fashion be useful to the Kennedy Administration.

Tied in with the President-elect's desire to tighten up on detection and enforcement activities of the various government agencies is his feeling that a useful purpose might be served by establishing a national crime commission to deal with the underworld problem at the federal level. Either that, or an existing federal agency should be expanded to serve as a central intelligence unit for gathering information on organized criminal activities.

Would Gather Data.

In the President-elect's view, the national commission would be empowered to gather information on the top crime leaders of the country, keep a close surveillance on their activities and disseminate information to state and local law enforcement agencies. It would serve as an intelligence unit only and would have no law enforcement powers.

Senator Kennedy is known to feel that local law enforcement agencies are incapable for various reasons of dealing effectively with crime syndicates.

In some areas of the country, as he has pointed out, there are special police units assigned to anti-racketeering tasks and that many of them do their work well within their local jurisdictions. But the President-elect is concerned that these special units are powerless to deal with interstate aspects of the crime problem and that, in some cases, local law enforcement agencies are unable or unwilling to push anti-racketeer cases with sufficient vigor because of local influences and pressures.

Aware of Dangers.

Senator Kennedy is aware that formation of a separate agency, such as a national crime commission, poses serious problems, among them the danger of the federal agency infringing on state and local law enforcement agencies the possibility of eventual development of such an agency into a national police force, which he does not want, and the danger of information assembled by such a commission falling into the hands of corrupt local police officials.

However, Senator Kennedy does not regard these problems as insurmountable.

The President-elect's concern over the national problem of organized crime dates back to his membership on the Senate select committee to investigate abuses in labor-management relations. Robert Kennedy was chief counsel of the committee.

In the course of the hearings, which lasted about two and one-half years and centered largely on the criminal activities of officials in several large unions, Senator Kennedy became aware that the criminal element was infiltrating labor unions and legitimate business enterprises as front for more sinister vocations.

This was particularly true in the committee's showing that hoodlums, such as John (Johnny Dio) Dioguardi of New York, wormed their way into control of unions and then used their power, not for the benefit of the rank and file members, but to extort money from employers.

Mysterious Gathering.

Perhaps the most striking example of hoodlum infiltration of business was the committee's findings with respect to the connections of 58 underworld figures who assembled under mysterious circumstances in November 1957 at the upstate New York estate of Joseph Barbara Sr., for what came to be known as a "crime convention."

Twenty of the individuals at the conclave at Barbara's baronial estate at Apalachin subsequently were prosecuted and convicted in federal court. The charges were conspiring to commit perjury and obstruct justice by giving false and evasive answers in a grand jury investigation of why so many underworld characters from widely separated parts of the country would suddenly turn up at Barbara's out-of-the-way estate at the same hour.

On Nov. 28, the Second Circuit Court of Appeals at New York threw out the convictions on the ground the Government had failed to produce sufficient evidence to support its conspiracy charge.

What concerned Kennedy about the revelations by the committee relating to the Apalachin mob, and still concerns him, was Barbara himself, who was an ex-convict with an apparently lucrative business as agent for a major soft drink distributor.

Most Had Records.

Of the 58, about 50 had arrest records; 35 had records of convictions and 23 had served jail or prison terms as a result of these convictions; 18 had been arrested and questioned at one time or another on murder charges. Other illegal activities traced to the Apalachin guests included trafficking in narcotics, for which 15 had been arrested or convicted; gambling, for which 30 had been arrested or convicted and illegal use of firearms, which led to the arrest or conviction of 23.

The business activities of the Apalachin group, the committee demonstrated, covered a wide range: Nine were or had been in the coin-operated machine business; 16 were involved in garment manufacturing or trucking; 10 owned groceries or markets; 11 were in the business of importing olive oil or cheese; 17 owned taverns or restaurants, and nine were in the construction business.

Others were involved in automobile agencies, coal companies, entertainment enterprises, undertaking establishments, ownership of race horses and racetracks, laundry enterprises, waterfront activities and baking companies. One was conductor of a dance band.

Sources close to Senator Kennedy say nothing in his current views on the crime problem implies any criticism of the court of appeals for throwing out the conviction of the Apalachin defendants. He does feel, however, that the blow-up of the Government's case against these defendants more sharply focuses attention on the need for closer federal surveillance of the operations of such alliances.

It is his intention, associates say, to try to establish an effective anti-racketeering system in the Justice Department which will have procedures that will meet every possible legal and constitutional test.

BOY SUFFERS BACK INJURIES IN FALL FROM TREE HOUSE

Dale Thomas Logsdon, 13 years old, suffered back injuries and a fractured left arm yesterday when he fell 35 feet from a tree house. He is in fair condition at DePaul Hospital.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Logsdon, 1522 Starlight drive, north St. Louis county, was sitting in a chair in the tree house when he and the chair fell, St. Louis county police said.

Young Logsdon was playing with Bill McGowan, 10, son of Dr. and Mrs. William McGowan, 1563 Starlight drive, at the time.

NEED FOR RAW MATERIALS
IMPORTS PREDICTED BY '80
WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (UPI)—A trade group predicts that by 1980 the United States and Canada will need twice the amount of industrial raw materials they now consume and will have to seek some outside North America.
The Canadian-American Committee, composed of 60 trade experts, said in a report yesterday that in the next 20 years "both countries will... become more dependent upon sources of supply outside the North American continent."

C. OF C. PREDICTS SLUMP, THEN RECOVERY IN '61

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—A brief recession, bringing a drop of 5 to 10 billion dollars in the rate of national production, was forecast yesterday at a business outlook conference of the United States Chamber of Commerce.
The prediction was made by Emerson P. Schmidt, the chamber's director of economic research, despite cautiously optimistic reports from representatives of four key industries—automobiles, steel, banking and building.

Schmidt foresaw a recovery in the second half of 1961 which, he said, will send total output of goods and services to a record rate of 515 to 520 billion dollars a year from now.
"In spite of further adjustments to come, 1961 as a whole should exceed 1960," Schmidt said. "There is no present ground for sustained pessimism."

Rise in Jobless.
"Unemployment is likely to average higher than in 1960, and be troublesome."

Reports from other participants on the outlook in their own fields supported Schmidt's forecast of an early 1961 dip and a summer rise. In summary, they predicted:

Auto sales next year will total about 6,500,000, down 200,000 from 6,700,000 expected this year.
Construction will set a record of $57,500,000,000, but will be barely above 1960 in the physical volume of new building. Home construction, long in a slump, will rise as the year advances.
Credit will be ample. The question is whether business men will use as much as will be available. Interest rates will decline moderately.

Steel Output Fair.
Steel production will be as good as or better than the 1960 volume. This was the industry's sixth best year, one in which it ran at half or two-thirds of capacity much of the time.

A steel price increase was foreseen by Irwin H. Such, editor-in-chief of Steel magazine, Cleveland. He said the industry has absorbed wage increases totaling 30 cents an hour in the last year, and told the chamber conference:
"The steel industry took no price action Dec. 1, but somewhere along the line you can take it for granted that it will—perhaps early in 1961."

Paul E. Herzog, research director of the National Automobile Dealers Association, said the motor industry's greatest immediate problem is "a precedent-shattering inventory of new vehicles in dealers' stocks"—971,000 cars, or 200,000 above the previous record level.

DEAR END TO THEFT OF DEER
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 5 (AP)—James Thomas Wright telephoned police yesterday and said someone had stolen a dead deer from his car when he was having coffee at his restaurant. He had tied the 10-point buck to the rear of his car after shooting it earlier in the day.

Meantime, two officers nearby spotted a car speeding by with a deer on the seat beside the driver. They gave chase, firing three warning shots into the air. The vehicle turned a corner, went out of control, and hit a parked car. The driver, Earl Snell of Louisville, was charged with reckless driving and grand larceny.

FOUR SISTERS DIE IN FIRE

BYRON CENTER, Mich., Dec. 5 (AP)—State police investigators said three young boys playing with matches may have caused a farmhouse fire yesterday that killed their four sisters.

Police said one of the boys admitted lighting matches and throwing them into a cardboard box in an upstairs bedroom closet.

The four girls, Deanna, 14 years old; Janna, 9; Cathy, 7; and Cheryl, 6, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Seabolt, were trapped in an upstairs bedroom. Seabolt, a plumber, suffered cuts and burns as he tried to climb a side of the house to reach the girls.

Greek Bricklayers End Strike. ATHENS, Dec. 5 (AP)—Striking bricklayers, whose demonstration Thursday turned into a riot which the government charged was Communist-inspired, returned to work Saturday. There has been no violence since Thursday.

NO EAST SIDE FUNDS FOR CIVIL DEFENSE

St. Clair county's civil defense office will cease operation next Dec. 31, it was announced today. Elimination of the agency was ordered Saturday by the county board of supervisors, which dropped an item of $59,165 for civil defense from the county budget for the fiscal year ending next Nov. 30.

The 31-to-6 vote to drop the activity followed rejection by voters last Nov. 8 of a proposition which would have authorized levying of a special civil defense tax of up to 5 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation.

The 2-to-1 margin of defeat was "clear mandate to abolish the agency," East St. Louis Township Supervisor Ben F. Day said. He was a leader in the move to drop the agency.

The civil defense office's budget for the 1960 fiscal year was $109,000, but only $58,000 was spent after the supervisors ordered sharp curtailment last January. The cut in expenditures was ordered after the Illinois Attorney General ruled that a special civil defense tax levied by the board was illegal without voter approval.

County Civil Defense Director Laurence F. Miller said that under restrictions of state law the board could have levied a tax not to exceed 1½ cents if the voters had approved the special proposition.

Miller, whose $10,000-a-year job was eliminated by Saturday's action, said he expected representatives of the federal Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization to appear soon to help handle disposition of a large amount of equipment purchased with matching federal funds.

This includes a 200-bed emergency portable hospital valued at $40,000 and radio and electric generating equipment worth $70,000, Miller said.

The civil defense office, which operates at the old county home at Swansea, north of Belleville, provides storm warning service to 89 county school districts, municipalities and several large industrial firms.

In other action Saturday, the supervisors approved a 1961 budget of $3,010,000, or $138,000 less than the 1960 budget.

Jakarta to Move on Rebels. JAKARTA, Dec. 5 (AP)—Gen. Abdul Harris Nasution, army chief of staff and national security minister, says military operations against die-hard rebels in the Indonesian interior will be increased soon. He says a visit to north Sumatra convinces him rebel fighting power has been reduced considerably in the last few months.

AUTO IN CHASE HITS TRANSPORT; YOUTH INJURED

Ronald H. Miller of Greenville, Ill., was seriously injured early today when his automobile struck the rear of a transport truck while he was being chased by Breese (Ill.) police.

The accident occurred on U.S.
Highway 50, about 35 miles east of St. Louis. Police said the youth was driving more than 100 miles an hour when he apparently attempted to pass the truck.

The chase began in Breese and
the city. Joseph C. Clark, West Terre Haute, Ind., driver of the truck, was not injured. Miller was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Breese, suffering from severe head injuries.

A woman was killed and three persons were injured in a head-on collision of pickup trucks on U.S. Highway 67 two miles south of Festus at 6 a.m. today.

The dead woman was Mrs.
Robert L. Martin, 52 years old, of Bonne Terre, Mo. Injured were her husband, 32, in whose truck she was riding. Stanley D.
Johnson, 18, Fredericktown, Mo., also riding with Martin, and Victor Fillmon, 60, DeSoto,
Mo., driver of the other truck.

Fillmon suffered a fractured skull and right leg; Martin internal and rib injuries, and Henderson bruises and abrasions.
All were taken to Jefferson County Memorial Hospital at Festus.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol reported that Martin's northbound truck was struck by Fillmon's southbound vehicle, which was in a northbound lane of the four-lane highway.

Accident Victim Dies.

William D. Johnson, 36 years old, of O'Fallon, Mo., died yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, of injuries suffered Saturday night in a five-car collision at Cahokia. His wife, Evelyn, 29, was killed in the accident.

Illinois State Police said Johnson's automobile, which was southbound on Illinois Route 3, was struck from behind by another machine. His machine was knocked into the northbound lane.

Other southbound cars involved in the accident were driven by Kenneth Earl, 18, 816 West Big Bend road, Kirkwood, and Guy E. Miller, Valmeyer, Ill. The other cars, which were going north, were driven by Joseph Gaynor, 18, 1725 Park Lane drive, Cahokia, and Mrs. Goldie Moran, 3800 block of Westminster place.

Sons Seriously Hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson's two sons, Michael 10, and William Jr., 6, were taken to St. Mary's Hospital in serious condition.

Earl and a passenger in his car, Larry Reilsteck, 14, 118
West Madison avenue, Kirkwood, are in St. Mary's Hospital with serious head injuries. Miller suffered head cuts and was taken to Missouri Pacific Hospital.

Earl, Gaynor and Miller were charged with reckless homicide in warrants issued by Police Magistrate Ralph LaMotte of Cahokia and Mrs. Moran was held under bond as a material witness. Police said the charges would hold pending a further investigation of the accident.

Dewey F. Kennon of 6853 Plymouth avenue, University City, was seriously injured yesterday when his automobile swerved out of control and struck a utility pole after being sideswiped by another car, St. Louis county police said. He is at St. Louis County Hospital with head injuries.

Kennon told police he was driving east on Olive Street road near Fee Fee road when his auto was struck by a car that failed to stop.

STATE ATOMIC ENERGY UNIT SEEKS PERMANENT STATUS

The Missouri Commission on Atomic Energy met here today and decided to seek legislation making it a permanent body.
The life of the present commission was set at five years when it was created 18 months ago.
State Senator Albert M. Spradling Jr. of Cape Girardeau, chairman, said after a closed meeting at the Statler Hilton Hotel that permanent status would be asked of the Legislature in January, because it has become clear that the need for such a state authority will be continuing.

It consists of four Senators, four Representatives and seven members appointed by the Governor. The commission approved another plan for proposed legislation in regulation of radiation hazards to health, calling for registration and inspection of radioactive materials and radiation machines, including X-rays.

ERROR ON MEETING TIME

A meeting of the United Young Democrats of St. Louis county will begin at 8 p.m. today, and not at 5 p.m. as erroneously reported in yesterday's Post-Dispatch.

Quentin Quade, professor of political science at St. Louis University will present an analysis of the recent local and national election results. A discussion and social hour will follow. The meeting will be at Raleigh House Restaurant, 8027
Forsyth boulevard, Clayton.

EL SALVADOR'S JUNTA IS RECOGNIZED BY U.S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—The United States yesterday recognized El Salvador's ruling junta which overthrew President Jose Maria Lemus's regime in a bloodless coup Oct. 26.

United States Ambassador Thorsten Kaliyarvi informed Foreign Minister Roland Deneke of El Salvador of the recognition, the State Department said.

The State Department said the six-man junta has given assurances that it will honor El Salvador's international obligations. The United States, together with a number of other Western Hemisphere countries, had withheld recognition while it examined charges that Communist influence through Cuba was behind the ouster of Lemus.

Jet Pilot Killed.

DENVER, Dec. 5 (AP)—Air Force Capt. Lawrence R. Reeves of Sterling, Colo., was killed yesterday when he ejected from his disabled F-102 jet fighter 100 feet from the ground—too low for his parachute to open. His plane crashed north of Buckley field and was destroyed by fire.

Now! Relieve acid attacks caused by STOMACH TENSION

Tablet discovery checks attacks in seconds... then works like a warm glass of milk to keep acid stomach soothed for hours

N.Y. N.Y. (Special). Medical science knows that today, millions suffer from Stomach Tension... a distress caused by today's hectic pace of living; juice and coffee breakfasts... eat-and-run lunches... diet foods.

Your own doctor can tell you. Stomach Tension pours wave after wave of burning acid onto delicate stomach tissues. But ordinary antacids merely relieve the first wave of acid... then leave the stomach, leave you open to further attack. An antacid was needed that could give prolonged soothing relief... the same amazing relief that doctors knew a warm glass of milk gave. The answer came when physicians discovered a Glycine compound—a medication that soothed a burning acid stomach even better than a warm glass of milk. A medical publication reported that this compound gave faster relief than ordinary antacids, and actually worked to soothe the stomach for hours and guard against repeated acid attacks. This most effective compound is named Amitone.

If you suffer Stomach Tension today, and ordinary antacids fail to bring the relief you want, you need Amitone. Amitone tablets are available at all drug counters without prescription.

ATOM TEST BAR TALKS RECESSED FOR TWO MONTHS

GENEVA, Dec. 5 (UPI)—The Big Three nuclear test bar talks were recessed today for two months.

The United States, Russia and Britain agreed to resume the two-year-old talks Feb. 7.

Western sources said the recess would give President-elect John F. Kennedy's administration a chance to review past progress and chart future moves in the nuclear conference.

However, United States delegate Charles C. Stelle said the recess was arranged because "the experience of recent weeks does not offer the promise of immediate progress."

Stelle, Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin and British delegate Sir Michael Wright negotiated the recess in recent days. Tsarapkin said "no pressing need" for the recess. He said the Soviet Union agreed to it "at Western insistence."

Stelle said in today's 30-minute meeting, "There is no sign of Soviet willingness to make progress in important areas."

Since the month-long August recess in the talks, the West had introduced two significant proposals which the Soviets did not completely answer, but appeared to reject.

These concerned how to install a world-wide control system in six years and have it operating on Soviet, United States and British territory in two years. The United States also proposed a maximum 27-month moratorium on hard-to-detect small underground tests.

After the meeting, Tsarapkin said the Soviet Union had made great efforts but the West refused to agree to Soviet positions.

"It is up to the United States and the United Kingdom completely," he said.

Tsarapkin said progress at the talks now depends on the United States position.

By the Associated Press.

In proposing the recess, Stelle appealed to the Soviet government to re-examine its position on controls which the Western powers insist are necessary to safeguard a test bar treaty.

Review of U.S. Policy.

He warned that a "thorough review" of United States policy will have been made when the talks resume, and said the next session will be decisive for the future of the conference.

"We do not know what final outer limits the U.S.S.R. will set for itself in these negotiations," Stelle was quoted as saying, "but I do know that we will not reach our goal unless some changes occur in its approach."

"I know that my government will make yet another serious attempt to reach agreement. At the same time, I also know that the United States cannot indefinitely content itself with a totally uncontrolled de facto moratorium on nuclear weapons tests."

"Thus, the outline of the bounds within which our resumed negotiations will inevitably take place already lies clearly before us."

DOUGLAS URGES END OF COLD WAR TO HELP CURB CHINA

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Dec. 5 (AP)—William O. Douglas, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, urged last night that the United States and the Soviet Union reach a political settlement which might one day protect both nations from China.

Douglas told a meeting of the Sinai Forum America must recognize both major powers are here to stay. He said it is time to stop thinking Russia can be stopped with missiles.

He said the one major advantage the United States has in swaying the uncommitted nations is that men would rather live under a democratic form of government than in a totalitarian state. He said Russia makes a serious mistake in thinking it can remake the world in its own image.

Burglars Dig Dry Hole.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5 (AP)—Burglars tried to tunnel into the basement of a liquor store from the basement of an adjoining store which they had broken into Saturday night. They dug a nice hole before they gave up—perhaps when they realized the liquor store has no basement.

The patch program is part of the society's case finding program, conducted on a year-round basis. There were 23 schools included in the November tests.

An additional 400 children in 18 schools will receive the tests this month. Tests are given at each school only upon request

DR. PHILIP SHAFFER FUNERAL TOMORROW

Ex-Dean Dead

Funeral services for Dr. Philip A. Shaffer, noted biochemist and former dean of the Washington University School of Medicine, will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. at Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

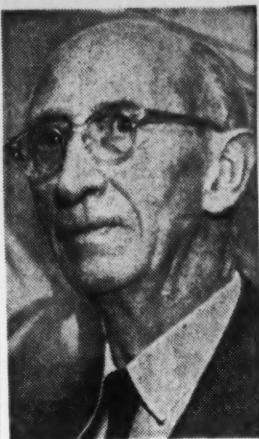

Dr. Shaffer, 79 years old, died yesterday at Barnes Hospital. He had been ill since last August. He lived at 5466 Clemens avenue.

He was dean of the medical school from 1915 to 1919 and again from 1937 to 1946. He was credited by his colleagues as having been chiefly responsible for elevating the school to a position of pre-eminence among medical institutions.

Through his research work, Dr. Shaffer demonstrated the importance of a high calorie diet in the treatment of typhoid fever, developed a test for determining the amount of sugar in the bloodstream and devised a method for obtaining insulin from the pancreas.

In 1951 he retired from the faculty and was given the title of distinguished service professor emeritus and lecturer in biological chemistry. He continued his research for several years afterward.

tinsburg, W.Va., and took his undergraduate studies at the University of West Virginia. In 1904 he was given the first doctor of philosophy degree in biological chemistry ever awarded by Harvard University. He did research at the Cornell Medical College before coming here in 1910. He served in the Army in World War I.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nan Evans Shaffer; a son, Philip A. Shaffer Jr. of Pasadena, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. A. Van Baden Prince, a grandson and a granddaughter.

REPORT CALLS SPACE SHARABLE RESOURCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (UPI)—An American Bar Foundation report said yesterday that space is a sharable resource to which no nation has exclusive right. Sooner or later, the report said, space law must come to grips with the problem of what space activities should be discouraged or prohibited.

It added, however, that "a detailed and comprehensive code, or convention, to govern the use of outer space would seem to be premature and might even be harmful today."

It recommended that scholars and governments continue to study the problems of space law as the new frontier unfolds, until the time comes when the possible uses of space become more clear.

The report was prepared for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration which made it public with the statement that it "is not a statement of NASA policy." I was written mainly by Profs. Leon Lipson of the Yale Law School and Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach of the University of Chicago Law School.

NASA General Counsel John A. Johnson and the authors of the report said legal scholars appear to agree unanimously that national sovereignty does not continue indefinitely into space above a country. In the three years since the birth of space age no nation over which satellites have passed has made any protest.

The United States has proposed international agreement that the moon and other "celestial bodies are not subject to national appropriation by any claims of sovereignty."

The report said repeatedly that its authors were making no recommendations. It said the nations eventually will have to deal with such problems as liability for misfired or runaway rockets, retrieval of satellites and astronauts which accidentally come down on foreign soil and "conservation of space" to keep it from being cluttered with junk.

Communist China's President Puts His Stamp of Approval On Soviet Coexistence Policy

Liu Shao-Chi, in Farewell Speech at Leningrad, Boosts Plan as Apparently Ratified at Red Summit Parley Which Ended Last Week.

MOSCOW, Dec. 5 (AP).

COMMUNIST CHINA'S PRESIDENT put a stamp of approval today on the peaceful coexistence policy of the Soviet Union as it apparently has been ratified by the Communist summit conference which ended last week.

In a farewell speech at Leningrad, before continuing his tour of Russia, President Liu Shao-chi said:

"The great Soviet Union has always been and is today a powerful bastion of world peace. The initiative of the Soviet government and its proposals aimed at easing international disarmament and peaceful coexistence between countries with differing social systems have the sympathy and support of all peace-loving nations and peoples."

HE SAID that the Red summit conference "resulted in a still further strengthening of the cohesion of the entire Communist movement and in a still further strengthening of the solidarity between the Communist party of China and the Communist party of the Soviet Union, between the People's Republic of China and the Soviet Union."

(Moscow radio broadcast Liu's speech, but this dispatch was delayed in passing through censors.)

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, published a long editorial a week ago in which it stated that peaceful coexistence as interpreted by Premier Khrushchev is the correct interpretation.

Coming as it did near the end of the conference, after more than two weeks of debate, it sounded as if the Russians had laid down the law as they saw it.

In his speech, Liu said that China's industrial and technical advances were heavily dependent on Soviet production.

"YOU MANUFACTURE for our country a great amount of intricate equipment," he said, "make available to us a great amount of designing documentation, send us skilled specialists, train for our country a great number of technical specialists."

West Puzzled Over Soviet Veto of U.N. Membership For Mauritania; Moroccan Pressure on U.S. Likely Russia Believed to Be Dropping Support of Africa Neutralism.

By SAM POPE BREWER
© New York Times News Service
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 5.

THE SOVIET UNION had Western delegations guessing today as to the meaning of its veto in the United Nations of membership for newly-independent Mauritania. The veto was not unexpected but the motive was not clear.

Soviet delegate Valerian A. Zorin had tried to make a bargain behind the scenes before Saturday night's long Security Council meeting. Western sources said that he offered to vote for Mauritania if the Mongolian People's Republic were also admitted. He implied that a veto of Mauritania would be the alternative.

In a stormy session that lasted until 3:50 a.m. yesterday, the Soviet maneuvers were called blackmail by James W. Barco of the United States, horse trading by Armand Berard of France and political trading by Igidio Ortona of Italy.

Morocco has opposed independence for Mauritania because it claims the 382,000 square miles of Mauritania as part of its historic territory.

THE MOROCCAN government already had agreed to accept aid from Moscow, and this move might help consolidate a foothold in North Africa.

Western diplomatic speculation was that Morocco's gratitude might take the form of pressure on the United States to evacuate military bases much sooner than the end of 1963, the limit set by an agreement between President Eisenhower and King Mohammed V a year ago. It also was possible there would be intensification of the Moroccan campaign for French military departure.

Western observers view the Soviet veto as indicating the evolving communist strategy in the cold war over Africa, which has taken form in strong support of the faction of Patrice Lumumba in the Congo.

Soviet strategy is now interpreted as having changed from one-time support of African neutralism to a policy of seeking specific points of strong support in Africa, even at the cost of alienating other African states.

The Mauritania membership veto was judged as likely to antagonize many more African states than it will please. It was a specific slap at Tunisia, which sponsored Mauritania's admission.

The Soviet position no longer favors African solidarity. Western observers now believe, rather than aimed at forcing Africans to take sides in the cold war.

RUSSIA'S NINETY-FIRST vote in 15 years came when eight members out of 11 voted for admission of Mauritania after a 5-to-4 vote not to consider Outer Mongolia. Only Poland voted with Russia on Mauritania, Ceylon abstained, Argentina and Ecuador had abstained in the vote on Outer Mongolia, while Ceylon had voted in favor of Mongolia.

The security council took five votes in the course of the meeting. It rejected first a motion by Bohdan Lewandowski of Poland to postpone the whole question. It refused also priority to the question of Mongolia. It then accepted consideration of Mauritania. It refused to consider Mongolia even after the Mauritania vote. Finally, it would have admitted Mauritania to the United Nations except for the Soviet veto.

The debate produced some bitter remarks. Barco said that the long list of Soviet vetoes was "a sad record, unworthy of a great power."

This latest veto, he said, "displays the cynicism of a country which in the General Assembly calls for the immediate end of one kind of colonial rule but which comes here in the middle of the night to stab in the back the newest of the independent countries." All this, Barco said, was "in pursuit of a policy of blackmail."

KENNEDY ASSURES CHIANG OF U.S. AID TO ASIAN FREEDOM

TAIPEI, Formosa, Dec. 5 (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy has assured Nationalist China his administration will strive to bolster "the hopes and opportunities for freedom in Asia."

Kennedy's assurances came yesterday in reply to congratulations from President Chiang Kai-shek on his election as United States President. In the presidential campaign the Formosa Government was critical of Kennedy's views on the importance of the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

The Foreign Office made public Kennedy's telegram to Chiang saying, "I can assure you that the new government is conscious of the responsibilities it has in sustaining the hopes and opportunities for freedom in Asia."

WHOSE REVOLUTION this was, what its goals were to have been and what it should have achieved by now is the substance of a debate raging across Cuba. In public it is a one-sided debate, for the Castro government effectively controls all platforms and channels of communication.

But the largely impotent and voiceless opposition is growing in numbers. This is because each day more Cubans are disillusioned about the nation's economic future and feel the hardships of industrial slowdown and social upheaval.

This is evident among members of the lower middle class and an increasing number of once well-uniformed workers. How the Cuban campesino—the peasant—calculates his status in the new experimental government-supervised co-operatives is still unknown.

IN THE SIERRA MAESTRA and other mountains of this easternmost province of Cuba, the peasants had been recruited to help the Castro rebels as the campaign against the regime of Many in Cuba Now Wondering 'Whose Revolution Was This?'

Question Reaching Substance of Debate With Voiceless Opposition to Castro Growing in Numbers.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA. AN ATTORNEY ROCKS gently in his chair on a hillside porch overlooking this old Spanish harbor, sips a demitasse of equal portions of local coffee and sugar and remarks with a break in his voice, "Whose revolution do you think this was?"

Across town, along the bay near the palm-shaded old cemetery, in a sagging wooden house on an unpaved craggy lane, a bookkeeper rocks in the same rhythm, sips the same brew and remarks with singular resignation, "This is not what we were told it would be."

Between them, in a public square, a local dignitary explains in the now customary shrill tones of revolutionary oratory what the revolution is: a revolution of workers and peasants "against privilege." Even some of the young men who fought here four years ago alongside Fidel Castro's first Santiago martyrs, the speaker says, did not understand this revolution and have become "traitors" to it.

That is why the urban opposition, although voiceless, is beginning to develop an ideology of its own and why many of its members honestly resent the charge that their disaffection is only a desire to regain material possessions.

Teachers and technicians at all levels, attorneys, engineers, physicians and even some skilled workers, argue that this was their revolution.

They cheered it, spied for it, sheltered its soldiers and designed its crude bombs, they say, because it held the promise of political democracy, of constitutional law and civil obedience, of honest government and a rational social reform that would have gradually redistributed the wealth of Cuba. It was, they contend, a "bourgeois revolution" against a Latin-American military dictatorship.

"We thought that finally we would have a little Switzerland in the Caribbean, rich, peaceful and democratic—not a little Bulgaria," a Santiago professor said about the early months of the Castro regime.

The modest, but unquestionably good, public works that have been achieved since the revolution, the gay and refreshing public parks and playgrounds where goats and pigs once fed on refuse, the beaches cleared for public use, the new schools and the designs for new low-cost homes, these are credited by Cuba's middle class not to the revolutionaries who speak

SUDAN REJECTS U.S. WHEAT DEAL, ACCEPTS RUSSIA'S

By The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Section

KHARTOUM, Dec. 5—The government of the Sudan announced yesterday its decision to pay cash for 100,000 tons of Russian wheat. In accepting the Soviet offer, the government turned down an American bid under the surplus commodities disposal program to sell the Sudan wheat and then lend back a substantial part of the proceeds for mutually-agreed-upon development programs.

A Sudanese official said the Soviet wheat deal was strictly nonpolitical and that there would be some difficulty in finding development programs toward which American wheat proceeds could be applied.

One minister smiled wryly and said, "Simple and naive as we are we came to the conclusion that we liked the lower price. This will have one important effect in helping keep down bread prices without subsidization."

Some observers here saw the Soviet wheat deal as another sign of a closer approach to the Soviet bloc by the post-revolution regime of Lt. Gen. Ibrahim Abboud. The Soviet Union on its part has recently shown fresh interest in the Sudan.

SOUTH AFRICA WITHDRAWS PASSPORT OF AUTHOR PATON

JOHANNESBURG, Dec. 5 (AP)—The South African government today withdrew the passport of Alan Paton, author and Liberal party leader, which will prevent him from making future trips abroad.

The passport was taken from Paton at Johannesburg's airport on his arrival from London after an extensive trip to England and the United States. In the United States he was presented with the annual Freedom Award on behalf of his work for better race relations.

During his tour the author of "Cry the Beloved Country" made speeches criticizing the South African government's strict racial segregation policies.

Inflation and Your Estate

THE chronic balance of payments deficit of the United States now running at the rate of four billion dollars per year calls attention anew to the prospects of further inflation. Inflation is likely to affect your estate in many ways and possibly make revision of your estate plans desirable.

In an inflationary period your income in dollars is likely to increase and your income taxes to increase at a much faster rate. Your estate is also likely to increase in value and your estate tax liability at a more rapid rate. Hence in estimating the total cash needs of your estate for taxes, administration and other costs it is prudent to assume a further increase will take place in the value of your estate and in your potential tax liabilities.

The prospect of continued inflation, interrupted from time to time by periods of business recession or even depression, poses problems in planning for the future security of your family. In investing your estate it may be desirable to invest in common stocks to an extent that a generation ago would have seemed lacking in prudence. Therefore, your trustees should have broad discretionary investment powers. Further inflation could result in a greater depreciation in the dollar than could reasonably be offset by an investment program designed to hedge against inflation. Hence it increases the likelihood that your trustees may have to use principal to supplement income for the proper maintenance and support of the beneficiaries.

If your estate consists largely of close corporation stock, particularly a corporation with excellent prospects of growth, the need of your estate for liquidity may be increased to an unanticipated degree. Such holdings could increase greatly in value, increasing your prospective tax burden and hence the cash needs of your estate at a far more rapid rate. This might make it difficult to provide your estate with sufficient cash to pay taxes in view of the fact that stock in a close corporation may be difficult to sell without sacrifice in values.

The prospects of further inflation give added importance to means of reducing the prospective burden of death taxes and minimizing family income tax burdens. This can be done only by careful estate planning.

In planning the disposition of your estate under today's conditions, you need the advice of your lawyer on all legal matters. Our officers will be very glad to confer with you about the financial steps that may be taken to minimize the impact of inflation on your estate.

Consult Your Lawyer

Your own lawyer should advise you on all legal problems pertaining to your estate. He should draw your will and any other legal documents needed to carry out your plans.

Like Nazi Fishwives

My heart is heavy over the developments in New Orleans — it's awful to see American women behaving like Nazi fishwives.

Violence, malice, obscenity—and all in the presence of, and some of it directed at, little children. Their exhibition is not only un-Christian, un-American and uncivilized, but completely unwomanly. I think that even primitive, uncivilized women instinctively would not carry on this way before children.

Where is their maternal instinct, their gentleness, their compassion? They have none of these feminine qualities. They behave like a pack of wild, vicious animals, these modern American mothers. Worse, they are Southern ones, who long have been the symbol of gentility in American women.

I should not be surprised to hear the click of knitting needles as they wait tomorrow for their victims. They have a greater need for the education they deny their young.

The New Devil

Now that the Chinese are about to develop an atomic bomb, one hears less of the dangers of Soviet plans for world domination.

In fact, talk is that we may become allies with the U.S.S.R. against the Chinese. Is it a simple coincidence that as we recognize the rise of China we are re-evaluating the possibility of coexistence with the U.S.S.R.? Or did it take the debates past and recent on "revisionism" in Communist theory to convince us?

Or is it possible that our assessment of Soviet intentions in the Khrushchev era has been made to justify our armament policy rather than vice versa? Small Voice

Tax the Taxes

I have just ended my first year in St. Louis and am shocked at the taxes imposed upon the residents of this state.

Perhaps people who have never lived elsewhere do not feel as I do, but in my opinion, Missouri taxes, especially those in St. Louis, are far above anything I have ever seen.

We have Missouri state income tax, sales tax, county real estate tax, county personal property tax, local village real estate tax, local village personal property tax, City of St. Louis earnings tax, state automobile tax, local village wind-shield sticker tax.

It would not surprise me if the state of Missouri did not enact a tax on taxes soon.

When I moved into this fair state, I received a small raise which I felt would make life a little easier on me and my family. Alas, the additional taxes I have to pay actually make my earnings less than they were prior to my moving into Missouri from Ohio.

What About Solvency?

After reading the news on the report of the Commission on National Goals, I was deeply shocked to note that our national goals do not include that of national solvency. There was no mention of the necessity of correcting our chronic adverse balance of payments now running at the rate of four billion dollars per year.

It is incomprehensible to me and gravely disturbing that a group of prominent men could have met to determine our national goals and have been completely unconcerned with the problem of national solvency. If this represents the thinking of responsible leaders of our nation, we are surely on the road to disaster.

U.S. Goals Abroad

The basic foreign policy of the United States should be the preservation of its own independence and free institutions. Our position before the world should be neither defensive nor belligerent. We should co-operate with nations whose ideals and interests are in harmony with ours. We should seek to mitigate tensions, and search for areas of accommodation with opponents. The safeguarded reduction of armaments is an essential goal.

In these words the President's Commission on National Goals has summarized what it holds to be our basic objectives in international relations. Short of that not yet discernible day on which an acceptable world government becomes a possibility, very few persons indeed will quarrel with this formulation.

Certainly we agree that "a major nuclear war would be a world catastrophe" and that therefore "the limitation and control of nuclear armament is imperative." One also agrees that "a safeguarded agreement to suspend nuclear testing may well be the first step, and would tend to limit the number of nuclear powers." And it might help to eliminate misunderstandings at least among ourselves if the new Administration accepted the proposition that "in view of the complex interaction of arms control and national security, we must organize a major Government effort for the analysis of political, military, and technical issues in order to provide a sounder base for policy formulation and negotiation."

Equally sound goals are "the preservation and strengthening of the United Nations," our alliances, and our commitment to NATO. These objectives do not preclude equitable contributions by our allies. Perhaps they would be more co-operative than they sometimes seem if they understood us more clearly. So "we must encourage far larger numbers of qualified Americans to live and work abroad." Here the commission came closest to being original. American good intentions go for little if American representation—by diplomats, business men, and teachers—does not fully reflect our position. The United States must be less than a true world power if it is not truly represented throughout the world.

The commission also insists—and rightly—that "the healthiest world economy is attained when trade is at its freest." The Hull reciprocal trade policy long has recognized that tariffs and quotas should be reduced. But its limited acceptance at home is indicated by the "peril point" and "escape clause" reservations deplored by the commission—if not in the strongest possible language. Indeed the weaknesses of its report stem from a realization that its views are not fully shared.

But why be timid? Opponents have the right and the opportunity to say what they will. Justifiable goals, however, will be realized only if, as the commission urges, "the American citizen in the years ahead devotes a larger portion of his time and energy directly to the solution of the nation's problems." We will then realize that our goals at home and abroad are interwoven, and that all of them are every citizen's business. Short of that we are short of the fundamental goal of self-government.

Sporting Item

To Washingtonians it is something of a mystery that Senator Kennedy could have lived among them so long without joining a country club. After all, so much in their city is settled in the course of a round of golf. Now that he is moving into the White House, there is a movement afoot to get him into a club, preferably the one to which President Eisenhower belongs, Burning Tree. If he does join, the members had better not give him the Eisenhower handicap for Kennedy was captain of the Harvard golf team; and in what must seem to him the dim long-ago, he played consistently in the low 70s. But there is a good chance that he will pass up the old driver for the new broom.

Seating Arrangement

Missouri's House of Representatives, already unwieldy, will grow some more in 1963. Preliminary estimates by the state legislative research department show that the House will gain eight new seats, making 165 in all. And the state's population growth since 1950 also will add to inequities in the House.

Most of the new Representatives will come from urban areas. St. Louis county alone will gain five, making 14 in all. Most of the losses occurred in rural areas, with the exception of the City of St. Louis, which may lose three of its 18 House members because of the city's population decline. St. Louis would still have the largest House delegation, but it would not have nearly enough to give its people representation equal to that in most counties.

Under a complicated constitutional formula, every county is entitled to one House member. Then the state population is divided by 200. Counties with two and a half times the resulting figure are given two seats, counties with four times the figure are given three, counties with six times the figure are given four, and an additional member is added for every two and one half ratios above that.

In 1963 the Representative from Wayne county—not the smallest in the state—will represent 7514 inhabitants. St. Louis city and county legislators will represent, on an average, about 49,000 inhabitants. Thus the present formula is a formula for unequal representation, and deliberately so. The Missouri House is a stronghold of rural minority interest in state affairs. The only way short-changed city voters can change it is through the formidable task of constitutional revision.

Questions to Be Resolved

The controversy over Harold See's resignation as vice president of Southern Illinois University deserves to be thoroughly ventilated, a task that is the primary responsibility of the university's trustees. They are scheduled to meet next Saturday. Was Mr. See "canned," as alleged by a Granite City business man who has close connections with the school? What had Mr. See done to be fired?

On its face the situation is more than a little puzzling to outsiders. University President Morris says Mr. See asked to be relieved of the burden of running the Southwestern Campus and overseeing construction of the new campus at Edwardsville. Mr. See confirms that Mr. Morris has accurately described the incident. And in the ordinary course of events, that would be that. But for reasons growing in large measure from the Granite City man's statement that Mr. See was fired, nagging doubts have arisen among the student body and faculty; a majority of both groups want Mr. See to reconsider and stay on as vice president.

Was Mr. See pushed into quitting? Was he the victim of administrative backstabbing? Mr. Morris and Mr. See both deny that this is so, but the doubts linger on. A thorough inquiry by the trustees should be able to settle the matter one way or the other.

Baron of Berryville

Baron Byrd of Berryville is a name sometimes given Virginia's senior Senator. The defiance with which he has challenged Democratic liberals—especially Senators Clark of Pennsylvania and Douglas of Illinois—makes it seem appropriate enough. Since his appointment to the Senate in 1933, Byrd has accumulated more than a quarter-century of seniority with which he maintains his dominant position on the Finance Committee.

As the head of a state political machine which tolerates little opposition, he feels so safe that he is inclined to tolerate little more opposition in the Senate. Contemptuous of ordinary party discipline, it is a minor wonder that he continues to designate himself as a Democrat. That is why Northern Democrats want to bar him from the party's policy-making caucus and from committee chairmanships.

They are justified by logic. After all, Byrd refused to back the Kennedy-Johnson ticket, and he has repeatedly opposed some of the most vital planks in the party platform. For example, he is against an old-age medical plan tied to Social Security. He is against using federal funds for housing and other public works. He is against school integration, slum clearance, aid to distressed areas, federal aid for school construction, a fair employment practices committee and other items for which most Democrats feel obliged to work under the mandate given them by their electors.

Byrd makes no bones about this. He has reiterated it in a letter to Senator Clark, saying that he was doing this "so you can prepare your case against me with full knowledge of what my position will be." He added that he regarded the Democratic platform as "radical, or leading to socialism and as being fiscally irresponsible." In most democracies such opposition to a party which has just won the national elections would be unthinkable on the part of one of its members. Americans, however, understand that it is possible for Byrd to be a Dixiecrat rather than a Democrat.

His attitude nevertheless is a cause for concern to the new Administration. It is akin to the defiance of Representative Charles Halleck, the Republican leader in the House, who already has threatened to have the old conservative Republican-Dixiecrat coalition in operation at the opening of the new Congress. President-elect Kennedy must prepare to act with the utmost authority and promptness if national objectives are not to be balked by sectionalists like Byrd and Halleck. These men have power far beyond what is warranted by the proportional strength of their constituencies, and they are ready to use it.

If They Want a New Airport

If, as seems almost certain, St. Louis and the county have allowed Weiss Airport to slip through their fingers as a site for a secondary air field, it will be most regrettable. It will be evidence of the sort of poor leadership that is preventing this metropolitan area from keeping abreast of the swiftly moving jet age.

This lack of initiative is so great that the Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce says there was "no response at all" to its offer to assist in acquiring Weiss and the necessary adjoining land by putting up the money for options. This is difficult to understand. The old Civil Aeronautics Administration, its successor, the Federal Aviation Agency, and various civic groups interested in aviation have for several years been pointing to the need for more airport facilities in this area. And while Weiss would not do as a secondary major airport, it would do as a secondary field for executive and private planes and thus take some of the load off Lambert-St. Louis Field, which is close to the saturation point.

A concern planning a housing project on land adjoining Weiss delayed beginning construction for almost four months because of the possibility that the land would be needed if St. Louis and the county took over Weiss. Land suitable for air fields has been selling fast in recent years. The prices have been mounting steadily. It is only logical to expect that such other land as is available will jump in price if and when Weiss is removed completely as a partial answer to the airport problem.

How much bigger does the airport problem have to become before St. Louis and the county at least take a few steps toward meeting it?

Choice of Moderation

Senator Kennedy's decision to make Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina his Secretary of Commerce indicates something about the next President's relations with business and with the South.

Gov. Hodges offers long business and federal and state political experience. He can be expected to avoid the conservatism of Eisenhower Secretaries of Commerce and to emphasize what President-elect Kennedy has constantly emphasized: the need for business growth to keep the nation healthy enough economically to meet its growing obligations. In North Carolina, Gov. Hodges attracted national attention for prompting state industrial development.

This record in his home state might have proved a failure had not Gov. Hodges been a man of moderation on civil rights issues. He permitted token integration as a reasonable price for retaining public schools. Thus North Carolina avoided the strife which has hampered self-development in some other Southern states.

With Vice President-elect Johnson at his side, and Gov. Hodges in his Cabinet, the next President obviously intends to work with Southern moderates. In the long run this policy may encourage desertions from the ranks of Southern die-hards. Mr. Kennedy will need all the help he can get for a vigorous program, including any he can gain from the not-so-solid South.

Evolution of the White House Staff

Mr. Kennedy Intends to Depart from Mr. Eisenhower's 'Chief of Staff' Idea

Edward T. Folliard in The Washington Post

On Nov. 18, 1952, President Harry S. Truman and President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower met at the White House and talked about the burden one would soon turn over to the other.

Matthew J. Connelly, then secretary to Mr. Truman, told years later of part of the conversation he overheard between the two men before the doors of the President's office were closed for a private conference.

As recalled by Connelly, the dialogue went like this:

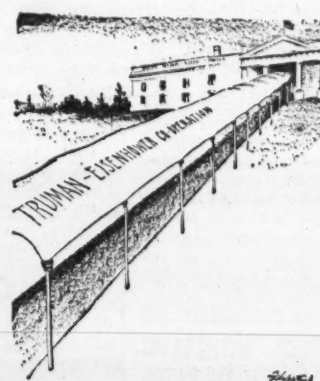

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Gen. Eisenhower's query was a tip-off to what would turn out to be a great change at the White House. The man he had been calling his "chief of staff" in the 1952 campaign was Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire, and he intended to retain Adams in that role when he himself took over the presidency on Jan. 20, 1953.

Six days after the Truman-Eisenhower conference in the White House, the President-elect announced at his Hotel Commodore headquarters in New York that Adams would be Assistant to the President, a $20,000-a-year job held in the Truman Administration by John R. Steelman.

Immediately after the announcement, Adams told reporters that his White House duties would be much more comprehensive than Steelman's. He said he would be a sort of "overseer" of executive business and would act as general liaison between the White House and the executive departments—and, to some extent, Congress.

Now, eight years later, President-elect John F. Kennedy has let it be known that he is going to abolish the post of the Assistant to the President.

—Post-Dispatch, Jan. 15, 1953.

Easing the Way to Change

(That is the full and correct title. It was never proper to call the holder of the office "Assistant President.")

Stelman, for whom President Truman created the post in 1946, said recently that he thought Mr. Kennedy had made a "wise move" in deciding to scrap it. He said the job had been "distorted" from the Truman concept of it, and that Adams had influence far beyond what ought to be possessed by any man not elected by the people.

Stelman said he was astonished when Adams told him how the White House was to be run in the Eisenhower Administration. For one thing, he learned that everything would have to be cleared through Adams, and that Adams would decide what would reach the President's desk.

Stelman was even more astonished when he learned about another change that was contemplated.

For more than seven and a half years, President Truman had presided at 9 a.m. meetings with his White House staff to talk about the work of the day and to "kick things around" in general. Now Steelman learned from Adams that Gen. Eisenhower as President would not preside at the morning staff conferences—that Adams would.

"This was a radical change," Steelman said recently. "I remember that I was worried. I felt that if the President didn't preside over the staff meetings, he couldn't possibly know what was going on."

Stelman said he once remarked to Adams: "Nobody ever voted for us. The ultimate responsibility has to be the President's. Therefore he has to know what's going on."

Stelman, who is now an economic consultant and publisher of the weekly Suburban Record in Montgomery county, Md., stayed on at the White House for more than six weeks after President Eisenhower moved in to help with the transition. He did this at the new President's request.

"In talking to President Eisenhower," Steelman said, "I got the impression that he didn't want to be told about any problems until the staff had worked on them. I got the further impression that the President didn't want his staff to bring him any problems unless they also brought along solutions for the problems."

Stelman said he concluded at the time that this approach was explained by President Eisenhower's Army training—that the new Chief Executive just couldn't imagine any other approach.

He said he saw evidence that President-elect Kennedy would handle his White House job more as Mr. Truman did—that is, would preside over staff conferences, see more of his Cabinet officers, be more accessible to callers, have longer working days, and do less traveling. But even if it should work out this way, Steelman said, Mr. Kennedy would have to have a top man on his staff, whatever that man's title or function might be.

A good deal has been said and written about President Eisenhower being "isolated" from what was going on. Former Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett, testifying before a Senate committee last February, had this to say: "I think the President in his own protection must insist on being informed and not merely 'protected' by his aides. . . . I think that is very unfair to him in many cases."

Tale of the Trout Tag From The Kansas City Times

The audited totals of Missouri trout tag sales tell a story of enormous growth, both in 1960 and during the last decade. The figures also suggest another excellent reason for the Missouri Outdoor Recreation Resources survey and plan to be presented to the Legislature in January. During the eight-month trout season this year, 140,928 tags were purchased by fishermen.

The growth over 1959 alone was about 15 per cent. A decade ago the total stood at only 25,520 tags. During the popular periods, especially weekends and holidays, fishermen stand virtually shoulder to shoulder on the river banks at Bennett Spring and Montauk. As the demand for trout fishing continues to grow, and no one doubts that it will, what facilities will be needed? Are more parks justified? Or hatcheries along other streams, such as the Current river?

The proposed outdoor survey should come up with answers to these questions and a multitude of others.

Between Book Ends Science for the Layman

INTELLIGENCE: ITS EVOLUTION AND FORMS, by Gaston Viaud. (Harper, 127 pp., $2.25.) THE ANATOMY OF PLANTS, by F. Font Quer. (Harper, 128 pp., $2.25.)

Two little books by Profs. Viaud and Font Quer are the first volumes on biology to be issued in Harper's "Science Today" series. These small, hard-cover books are intended to present a variety of scientific subjects authoritatively, but at a level suited to the lay reader.

M. Viaud, who is professor of psychophysiology at Strasbourg, presents a discussion of intelligence that is a model of what scientific popularization ought to be.

After a brief but graphic introduction to the nature of intelligent behavior, Prof. Viaud divides his book into two sections, "Practical Intelligence," and "Logical and rational intelligence."

By "practical intelligence" the author means the ability to use bodily movements and actions to deal with external events—the human use of tools is the culmination of such intelligence. This section deals with animals, children, and primitive and civilized adults, which are interestingly contrasted. Also included here are the fascinating experiments of Kohler, Nissen, and others on the problem-solving ability of chimpanzees.

The chapters on conceptual and rational thought emphasize the dependence of the purely human forms of intelligence on language, which makes it possible to sum up thoughts and memories in verbal symbols. The ability to "understand reality and to act accordingly" the author considers in terms of the behavior patterns of primitive men and of those living under various forms of civilized societies. He comes to the challenging conclusion that the union of rational thought and action, the "Greek miracle" by which the Western world was shaped, was an accident of history that might never have happened.

The book of Prof. Font Quer, who is on the faculty of the University of Barcelona, is by contrast an example of what scientific popularization should not be. Bristling with forbidding terminology, it is a straight-forward anatomy text that makes concessions to nobody. One hopes that the publishers will take care that future books in their new series veer sharply in the Viaud direction. Florence Moog

WALTER LIPPMANN

Brazil to Go Own, Not U.S. Way

GRADUALLY, I HAVE BEGUN TO SEE what has gone wrong in our relations with Brazil. Inattention and mediocrity and lack of understanding are the causes of the trouble. The rulers and leaders of Brazil feel that since the death of Franklin Roosevelt there has been nobody for them to talk to who had power and who cared about them.

Since his death they have had no access to the key people in this country and they have not had contact with the best minds devoted to political and financial international affairs. The deterioration began under President Truman, and the story is generally believed that Secretary Acheson told a leading Latin American diplomat that he was not interested in South America, and that the Latin Americans could talk to one of his subordinates.

Acheson

Whether the story is true or false, what it signifies is the nub of the matter. It is generally believed in Brazil that when President Kubitschek visited Washington, President Eisenhower went through the ceremonies for him but told him to talk about business to subordinate officials.

Inflation Misunderstood.

When the Brazilians have come in contact with the second and third level, they have found, so they say, that whether under order from above or by their own preconception these officials did not understand or sympathize with the problems of an under-developed country.

What kind of understanding have the Brazilians not found in Washington during the past 10 years? The point is crucial but it is complex, and I am compelled to simplify, perhaps to oversimplify.

In Washington, the Brazilians say, they have been confronted with men in the Treasury, the State Department, and the World Bank who have looked upon the Brazilian inflation through the eyes of the classical economists of a highly developed country like the United States or Great Britain.

That is to say, they have thought that inflation meant that production was a maximum and that the government and the people were trying to buy more goods than existed. The remedy for inflation in the classical economics of advanced countries is to spend less and to save more.

Victim of Its Wants.

This may be true for the United States, say the Brazilians, but it is not true for Brazil. There is inflation in Brazil although there is much unemployment and there is no full use of the productive resources.

Inflation occurs because the economy is strangled by its own backwardness, by the lack of electric power and of fuel, of roads and transportation, of education, of public health—of those underlying facilities which are essential to the expansion of a free industrial economy.

A country in Brazil's stage of development cannot cure inflation by retrenchment alone, however desirable and necessary it is to do away with marginal waste and corruption. In order to make its economy work, it must build what the Brazilians like to call the infrastructure—that is to say the public facilities without which a free economy cannot exist and expand.

The Brazilians believe that Senator Kennedy and his economic advisors understand what the conservative Eisenhower economists do not understand—the role of the public sector in a free economy. They expect under the new Administration to meet much more sophisticated men when they come to Washington.

I do not think that they think that a Kennedy Administration can or will or should pay their international deficits. On the contrary, there is a deep moral revulsion against financial dependence on the United States, and the reasons for this arise not from their being anti-American but from their growing sense of self-respect. They are within sight of economic independence, and more and more they feel and act like an independent nation.

What about their foreign policy? I must warn the reader that what I have to say here is based not on information but on inference. For what it may be worth, I believe that the Brazilian leaders know that the post-war period has ended, that the kind of action represented by the Marshall Plan is no longer possible.

New Foreign Policy.

But they need capital from abroad, and to get it they will have to go to the unsentimental capital markets of the world, and they will have to become eligible for loans by playing according to the more orthodox rules of the game.

To do this they will have to take measures at home to eliminate the more obvious forms of unproductive spending—principally the subsidies to keep down the cost of living. These measures will, of course, be unpopular.

Unless all the signs fail, the new Quadros administration will be determined to make it perfectly clear that its financial orthodoxy is not directed by the United States. For that reason, and also for other reasons, we should not be surprised to see the government strike out rather boldly and spectacularly away from the established line of United States foreign policy.

Almost certainly the Quadros administration will recognize the Soviet Union and probably also Red China. It may well align itself frequently in the United Nations and elsewhere with countries like India, Egypt, and Yugoslavia.

If this happens, it will be no reason for going into hysterics. Brazil will remain our friend, bound to us by long tradition, by economic and strategic ties.

ROGER NYQUIST

Appears at Graham Memorial Chapel in Washington University Series.

By MANUS SASONKIN

Roger Nyquist bounded across the platform of Graham Memorial Chapel last night, bowed perfunctorily but amiably, slid himself along the bench until he was squarely in front of the organ console and proceeded to show the instrument that it had met its conqueror.

We do not ordinarily think of the organ as a particularly mobile or dextrous sounding instrument, but Nyquist, a young man of seemingly boundless vitality, knows better.

He tamed the hulking levathan in short order, curbing it of its predilection for tonal density, and producing sounds which were precise, crisp and altogether business-like. The effect was startling and correspondingly refreshing.

It was even more refreshing when one considers the ponderous manner in which the organ is usually played. We have long since grown accustomed to hearing murky textures, a rhythmic fluidity, frequently degenerating into instability, and rather puffy tempos.

From his opening notes last night, Nyquist rejected the familiar traditions of organ performance. During the course of his program, he demonstrated a virtuoso's control of hands and feet, neatness of articulation, a monumental rhythmic control coupled with a briskness of pacing, and an acute sense of color.

Considered purely from the technical standpoint, Nyquist's appearance on the Washington University series constituted a triumph of the first magnitude.

Occasionally, however, this very facility led him into some strange doings. I could not help feeling that his incessant staccato treatment of the fugue subject in Bach's colossal Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor transformed the epic grandeur of the music into coy flippancy.

A more restrained tempo, a more vocal concept of the individual melodic lines, and perhaps even a bit less preoccupation with the mechanics of attack and release, would, I suspect, have resulted in a performance that was meaningful and communicative, instead of the brilliant, somewhat precocious reading which Nyquist submitted.

There were other curious moments last night. Jeremiah Clarke's Trumpet Voluntary and a Rondo by John Bull sounded as though they had been doctored by an alien and not altogether sympathetic scalpel.

The textures in the former and a good many of the harmonies in the latter struck me as being not altogether authentic, and it occurs to me that there is no really legitimate justification for altering what a composer, in all good faith, has committed to the paper.

But Nyquist's flaws are the flaws of zeal and enthusiasm. He has, I feel, yet to discipline himself his emotions and his intellect. When he does, he will be a performer who is not only refreshing, but revelatory, for certainly he possesses all of the necessary potential; and last night, when his musical sympathies were engaged, he revealed far more than just potential.

At Christmas Party for Children

GREGORY STONE JR., 3 years old, getting assistance from MORTON D. MAY, president of Famous-Barr Co., in operating toy given by Santa Claus at the department store's annual Christmas party. Gregory's parents live at 4238 California avenue.

Christmas Party for 5000
Children Given by Famous-Barr

The spirit of the Christmas season came early to about 5000 bright-eyed, handicapped and underprivileged children who were greeted by Santa Claus, presented gifts and entertained yesterday at the downtown store of Famous-Barr Co.

Hostesses lined the inside aisles of the Sixth street entrance to welcome the youngsters who came in shifts by chartered buses, taxicabs and ambulances to attend the department store's twenty-first annual Christmas party.

The party was a happy occasion for the children, many of whom never before had been in a department store. The big event was the stage show, repeated five times to accommodate all the visitors.

Wheelchair patients were placed in front and the other children were seated behind them in folding chairs arranged around the stage on the store's fourth floor. By the time Santa Claus arrived to conclude the show, most of the children had already asked when he was coming.

Rivaling Santa Claus on the program were the clown, Uncle Otto, who has performed at Famous-Barr for the last 24 years; magician Chick Kueser, organist Ollie Sandel, Miss Lona's trained dogs, Louis Tops and his monkey and comedy skiers Sieler and Seabold.

Despite the competition, Santa still made the biggest hit with the youngsters. He was greeted by choruses of "oohs," "ahs" and "there's Santa Claus."

On arrival at the store, children went directly to see the Pink Cloud Cottage on the ninth floor. Cripple and blind youngsters were taken on the elevator, and the others went on escalators.

The snow-covered Pink Cloud Cottage display was filled with mechanical figures at work and play. Christmas trees, pink clouds and other eye-catching ornaments complemented the figures. Outside the cottage exhibition, each child received a Santa Claus comic book and toy.

From the ninth floor, the youngsters were escorted through the eighth-floor toy department, which was manned for the day. Some toys were placed on the floor for children to see and operate. Several store employees pulled wagons through the department to carry some of the handicapped children in the event they became tired.

About 1000 employees from the store's four branches and two warehouses who volunteered to assist at the Christmas party seemed to enjoy the occasion as much as their young charges. Store executives also participated.

Recorded music was piped through areas visited by the children, who received a candy-filled stocking on leaving the store.

In addition to the festivities in the store, Famous-Barr sent two similar troupes of entertainers to City, Homer G. Phillips and Cardinal Glennon hospitals. Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, the Ranken-Jordan Home and Neighborhood Association.

The troupes, featuring Santa Claus, included store employees and their wives who assisted in passing out gifts. A show, lasting about an hour, was presented at each of the six stops.

At Cardinal Glennon Hospital, children were seated in the front lobby and bed patients well enough to see the show were brought in their beds to the lobby. Performers in the group included clown Carl Trainer, juggler Paul Zallee, 13-year-old baton twirler Stephaniea Kestranek, and accordionist Norma Ort.

Santa Claus and Trainer made the round of wards to visit and present gifts to children too sick to be moved. Santa returned in time to end the show and start giving gifts of comic books, toys and Christmas stockings filled with candy.

DR. DOOLEY ILLNESS LIKELY TO BE EXTENSION OF CANCER

HONG KONG, Dec. 5 (AP)—Dr. Thomas A. Dooley's doctors said yesterday a bony destruction in the vertebrae is "highly likely to be due to an extension of cancer."

Dr. Dooley, of St. Louis, is co-founder of Medico, which operates hospitals in remote villages of northern Laos and other parts of southeast Asia. He was hospitalized Wednesday. A series of X-rays was taken and hospital authorities announced:

"The X-rays show some destruction of the bones of the spine and, though it is not yet definitely established, it is highly likely that this bony destruction is due to an extension of cancer."

A cancerous tumor was removed from his chest in New York 16 months ago.

FATHER REINERT
HONORED AT TEA

St. Louis U. President Gets Award for Work in Racial Justice.

The New Orleans controversy over desegregation is saddening not only because of the public school situation but also because Catholic schools there are not integrated, the Rev. Patrick J. Molloy, moderator of the Catholic Interracial Council of St. Louis, said yesterday.

Father Molloy, pastor of Most Blessed Sacrament Church, spoke at a council tea honoring the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert S. J., president of St. Louis University. About 300 persons attended the tea in the church's Bradley Hall, 5017 Maffitt avenue.

A special award was presented to Father Reinert from the Catholic Interracial Council for his "significant contribution to the field of interracial justice."

The award cited Father Reinert for his religious, educational and cultural contributions to the city, his services as university president, promotion of new educational buildings and facilities at the university, integration of all its schools and his "excellent understanding of brotherhood."

In his talk, Father Molloy said: "I personally feel that Catholics of New Orleans would accept integration if the Archbishop would so order." He said the trouble in New Orleans brought to mind a similar situation in St. Louis—the June 1949 Fairgrounds Park incident, which resulted when Negroes were first admitted to city park swimming pools.

Father Reinert, who spoke on "Equality of Opportunity — the American Ideal," said St. Louis University has never enjoyed greater prestige and more loyal support from the community, in reporting on some of the university's efforts in racial and human relations.

He discussed efforts to bring students into contact with all cultures, foreign and domestic, training of leaders in the field of human relations and co-operation with universities in other countries.

The American form of government and all that is associated with the American ideal, Father Reinert said, "will face the greatest challenge in our history in the 1960s, internally and externally."

Equality of opportunity to educate oneself and one's family is where the American ideal should be, he said. This ideal should remove the limitations of race, creed, geographic location and economic status, he declared.

Composer Kodaly III.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 5 (AP)—Composer Zoltan Kodaly, 78 years old, is seriously ill with coronary thrombosis, hospital officials announced yesterday.

"The X-rays show some destruction of the bones of the spine and, though it is not yet definitely established, it is highly likely that this bony destruction is due to an extension of cancer."

JOINT SCRUGGS GIFT

Largest Donation Made by Store and Employees—Employee Giving Up 16 Pct.

Scruggs, Vandervoort, Barney department store and its employees have pledged $29,717 to the United Fund, Frank M. Mayfield, chairman of the store's board of directors, announced.

He said it is the largest donation made by the store and employees to the fund.

The employee drive raised $14,717, a 16 per cent increase over last year, said Alfred B. Halliwell, chapter chairman and industrial editor for the store.

Halliwell said the store campaign was highlighted by a rally attended by 1000 employees who conducted a convention-style demonstration for the United Fund, including the making of speeches and showing of a film.

Situation Normal

Dan Topping was getting off the Spirit of St. Louis before he noticed the name of the Pullman he'd been riding from New York: August A. Busch. The Yankees' president, taxiing to the Chase Hotel and found the lobby crawling with chumps whose gaudy striped hats bore the printed exhortation: "Win with Falstaff!" Seems the Griesedieck (Falstaff Brewing Corp.) Cardinals of the National Football League were playing the Philadelphia Eagles in Busch Stadium, home of the Budweiser Cardinals of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs.

It only seems confusing. Wait till baseball's loftiest intellectuals are brought together like malt and hops for a three-day exercise in chaos called the annual winter meetings of the major leagues. Here is the situation to be resolved in 72 hours of keen, incisive bungling:

There are now eight National League teams but maybe there'll be nine. There are now nine clubs in the American League, which might play with eight or ten. One league has a schedule for 1961, subject to revision, which several clubs have already announced as official. The other league has no schedule at all and both may wind up playing each other.

Two big league franchises have been assigned to three cities. Houston, Minneapolis-St. Paul, where the owners have no territorial rights. Two other cities have been tapped for new franchises. National League owners in New York expect to operate in either 1961 or 1962 in Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds or mid-air, sometimes called Flushing Meadow. No owner has been announced for the American League franchise in Los Angeles.

All Is Ginger-Peachy

Washington's new Senators have a general manager, a manager, two coaches and three players, a four-to-three plurality (bigger than Jack Kennedy's) for the front office over the playing field. Kansas City has a field manager, Joe Gordon, but not necessarily an owner or general manager. One team, the Cubs, has no field manager.

Five teams—New York and Houston in the National League, Los Angeles, Washington and the Twin-Cities in the American—aren't sure whether they'll play in 1961 or 1962. If Washington couldn't go, its two drafted players, Ray Semproch and John Gabler, would be homeless.

The three Triple-A minor leagues wonder about their franchises in Miami, Charleston, Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth, Sacramento and Jersey City. There's talk of teams in San Juan, Puerto Rico and Honolulu, with a possible little world series between these neighbors.

Some National League thinkers are saying "the Americans are sort of at us for beating 'em into Houston. So why don't we give 'em Houston and the Twin-Cities and take New York and Dallas-Fort Worth?"

The Deep Freeze

It is now open season for trading within and between the leagues, but 40 per cent of the players on American League rosters are frozen, each club having set aside 15 men for possible sale to new league members at $75,000 a man. The National League plans to give new members a fair shake by allowing each team to reserve only 15 of its 40 players. With 25 men to pick from on each roster, new clubs might get some who could play ball.

Before the Americans arranged their talent pool for new teams, the Tigers shuffled their roster to bring in new prospects. Rules require that seven of the men marked available for purchase must have been with the team on Aug. 31. Only 20 on the Detroit roster were there Aug. 31, so setting aside seven of them leaves the Tigers with only 13 worth using in trades.

"Do you want Colavito?" Detroit asked the Dodgers' Buzzy Bavasi.

"Sure," he said, "who do you want for him?"

"Demeter, Lillis and Roseboro."

"It's a deal."

"Well, let us think about it." Somebody thought, deeply. Then Bavasi was told Detroit had four untouchables not to be mentioned in deals—Colavito, Kaline, Bunning and Lary.

"That leaves you nine guys to deal with," Buzzy said. "You gonna offer me Norm Cash?"

Bavasi also talked trade with Cal Griffith of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Twins if such there be.

"Buzzy was very fair," Griff said. "Offered me some good men."

O'Malley Stipulates Any New L.A. Club Use Rose Bowl Proposal Is Up for Vote Today

By Neal Russo

The American League will be permitted to put a club in Los Angeles if it plays its home games in the Rose Bowl, Walter O'Malley, the Dodgers' owner, and Warren Giles, National League president, gave this stipulation to a committee for presentation to the American League at its meeting here today.

The Rose Bowl proviso was disclosed by O'Malley following a special meeting of club representatives late last night in Commissioner Ford Frick's suite at the Park Plaza Hotel. The four-hour huddle lasted into the early morning hours.

The two major leagues met in separate sessions today as they attempted to solve the expansion dilemma in one of baseball's most important gatherings since Abner Doubleday pioneered the game.

As the winter meetings officially opened, A.L. club officials convened with president Joe Cronin in the Stockholm Room on the two-sixth floor, the N.L. leaders met with Giles.

The special meeting last night was arranged in an attempt to settle the differences between the leagues and clear the way for the A.L.'s expansion to 10 clubs for 1961.

Giles said he was confident that a solution would be worked out. "It may not make everybody happy," he said, "but it won't be a fight."

O'Malley rejected a counterproposal that would allow the new L.A. team to use the Coliseum, which they now occupy.

The Dodgers surveyed the Rose Bowl before moving into the Coliseum, which they now occupy.

O'Malley's proposal needs a majority vote for approval by the A.L. owners. The new club's owners also must okay the Rose Bowl.

Unanimous approval of owners in both leagues is required to put a club in a city already occupied by a major league team. Today's meetings were called to act on amendments to the rules on expansion. The amendments, drawn up by Giles and Cronin last week, presumably include indemnity payments to the Dodgers. If the two leagues can't agree on the amendments, Frick said he would cast the tie-breaking vote.

O'Malley, who has objected strongly to sharing the Coliseum with a new American League club, has recommended two nine-team leagues next season, with inter-league schedules.

However, most fellow N.L. owners were cool to that proposal, intended for only one season.

The A.L. voted to expand to 10 teams in 1961 by moving the Washington franchise to Minneapolis-St. Paul, putting a team in Los Angeles and installing a new club in Washington.

N.L. Increase in 1962. The more cautious National League plans to increase to 10 clubs in 1962 by adding New York and Houston.

Another alternative would be to stick to eight clubs for next season. In that case the new Washington franchise headed by Elwood Quesada would have to sit out one year. However, it was feared that Congress would object to keeping major league ball out of the nation's capital for even one season.

If the two leagues come to an agreement today Frick could call them immediately to settle the matter in joint session. Then the American League could proceed with setting up an owner in Los Angeles and distribute the 120-man pool (15 from each club) to stock the two new teams. Each new club must take 25 men at $75,000 each.

Of the four groups which have made bids for the American League franchise in Los Angeles, the group headed by cowboy singer Gene Autry and former Stanford football star Bobby Reynolds appears to have the inside track. Autry, a prosperous businessman, and Reynolds, a radio executive, are to meet with O'Malley here today.

Casey Stengel and Fred Haney reportedly will be connected with the Autry-Reynolds group.

Other bidders for the new Los Angeles franchise are: Charles Finley of Gary, Ind.; Bill Cousens of Chicago and Gene Klein, representing National Theaters and Television, Inc. Klein has said that Leo Durocher would be his manager if he gets the franchise.

Facing some perplexing problems regarding expansion of their league, the American League Board of Directors are meeting at the Park Plaza Hotel here today. Outfielder Bruton to Cards In 3-Club Deal Is Latest Rumor

A three-club trade with the Cardinals winding up with Bill Bruton, the Phillies with Joe Cunningham and the Braves with Dick Farrell was the hottest swap possibility today as the major league baseball meetings opened here.

General Managers Bing Devine of the Redbirds and John Quinn of Philadelphia acknowledged the three-way discussions. Holding up such a deal is failure to agree on the extra players to be included.

The Cardinals are seeking Bruton from the Braves to solve their centerfield problem. The Phillies feel that the Redbirds' Cunningham, who can play first base or the outfield, can add some much-needed punch in the lineup. The Braves want relief star Farrell because their bullpen, featuring Don McMahon, collapsed last season.

"We've been interested in Bruton for some time," said Devine, who now has newcomer Don Landrum and Curt Flood available for center field.

Cunningham in Demand. The Cardinals, reported hesitant to give up shortstop Daryl Spencer for Bruton because they would be weakening one position to improve another, have found Cunningham to be in great demand.

Quinn said the same thing about Farrell, a hard-throwing right-hander, who was one of the National League's best firemen last season.

"We have found Farrell to be very desirable to teams in both leagues," Quinn said, "and we definitely would not trade him one-for-one. We'd have to get someone with power because that is our biggest need right now. We've liked Cunningham for some time."

According to one report on the possible three-club deal, the Cardinals would send infielder Alex Grammas along with Cunningham to Milwaukee. The Braves then would hand over Cunningham and outfielder Wes Covington to the Phillies for Farrell, and send Bruton to St. Louis.

Cunningham tailed off from .345 batting average in 1959 to .280 last season. He had hit over .300 three straight seasons.

There were more rumors that the Cardinals might part with Larry Jackson in a package deal with the Yankees in order to land Elston Howard and Whitey Ford. Devine stressed that he would not like to part with a front-line pitcher unless he got an established starting pitcher in return.

Dan Topping, one of the Yankee co-owners, told a reporter here today that he was not willing to let Howard go.

Howard, a righthanded batter used as a catcher, first baseman and outfielder, also is being sought by the Dodgers. The versatile native St. Louisan can be had for pitcher Johnny Podres and outfielder Duke Snider, United Press International reported, adding that Los Angeles wants to have southpaw Billy Short included.

The Braves also reportedly have offered Bruton, second baseman Chuck Cottier and catcher Dick Brown to Detroit for second baseman Frank Bolling.

The only deals completed so far at the winter meetings sent Harvey Kuenn from Cleveland to San Francisco for Johnny Antonelli and Willie Kirkland, and Cincinnati sold second baseman Billy Martin to Milwaukee.

Prof. Ashburn Teaching English

The bench jockeys may be calling the Cubs' Richie Ashburn "Professor." The outfielder is teaching English to seventh- and eighth-graders back home in Tilden, Neb.

"I took the job because they needed teachers so badly," Ashburn said. "I know the parents of most of my pupils because there are only about a thousand people in Tilden."

Ashburn is here for the baseball meetings as the Cubs' player representative.

Celts Top Los Angeles; Royals Bow

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5 (AP)—The Boston Celtics emphasized defense last night as they outlasted the Los Angeles Lakers, 113-103, in a National Basketball Association game.

The Cincinnati Royals, having their troubles in the N.B.A. after getting off to a whirlwind start, bowed to the Detroit Pistons, 116-115, for their sixth straight defeat. Cincinnati began the season with four victories in a row, but since then the Royals have won only five games in 22 outings for an overall 9-17 record.

Buckeyes, With Lucas, Favored Over Bills

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—Ohio State University's basketball team, which last year defeated St. Louis U. on the way to the N.C.A.A. title, is expected to beat another Billiken team when they meet here tonight at 7:30 St. Louis time.

The Buckeyes, who lost only one regular from the title team, reportedly are just as fast and slick as ever and Jerry Lucas, just as hard to handle as when he won All-American honors as a sophomore.

St. Louis, which opened its season Saturday night with a 76-24 victory at home over the California Aggies, is not as experienced or as settled as the Billiken team that lost to the Buckeyes a year ago at St. Louis, 81-74.

The Billikens do have 6-10 Bevo Nordmann to go against the 6-8 Lucas; they have Glen Mankowski as an experienced player to oppose one of the hot-shot Ohio guards, Mel Nowell or Larry Siegfried.

But it is a question whether the Billikens can match the Buckeyes at any position. St. Louis Coach John Benington, whose first Billiken team won a game here two seasons ago by a 77-68 score, probably will attempt many defensive measures to try to keep the Buckeyes within catching distance, but at this second-game stage of the season, it doesn't seem likely the Bills can succeed.

Sugar Ray's Finish

Sugar Ray Robinson, who gained a draw with Gene Fullmer in their bout for the National Boxing Association version of the middleweight championship at Los Angeles, says he doesn't know whether he's interested in continuing boxing.

If Robinson should decide to call it quits after a career of more than 20 years, he will leave with the knowledge that his last effort was one of his best and also with the knowledge that many ringersiders and many TV viewers felt he had won.

But the best he got was a standoff. The referee voted for him, one judge for Fullmer and the other called it even. That made it an official draw and thus the champion retained his title.

Tommy Hart was the referee who voted for Robinson. The score card of Hart, a capable official, caused confusion in the minds of fans watching on TV, at least, because it appeared that he had given Robinson 11 rounds and Fullmer four.

But the voting was done on a point system. The winner of a round got one or more points to five and the loser none. Neither got anything for an even round.

Thus an examination of Hart's card showed that he had called nine rounds for Robinson, four for Fullmer with two even and awarded Robinson 11 points to four for Fullmer. In only two rounds did he give the winner more than one point. Those were the fourth and the eleventh, each of which he scored for Sugar Ray by two points.

Judge George Latka, who called the match a draw with Robinson two points in the fourth and eleventh rounds, with one point going to the winner of the other rounds.

Close Scoring

Judge Lee Grossman, who voted for Fullmer, nine points to five, scored the rounds nine for Fullmer, five for Robinson and one even. He didn't see a round in which the victor was entitled to more than one point.

Harry Kessler, prominent national referee, watched the bout on television here and while he didn't announce his score, he believed that Robinson had won.

"It was a very close bout," said Harry. "There was considerable holding, but it was hard to detect just which fighter was the more guilty. Fullmer rushes an opponent, who is forced to tie him up or run. Gene bulls his way in close to pound the body."

"Robinson appeared to me to have made a great showing, particularly considering the fact that he is 40 years old and has been boxing so long. He not only went the full route, but didn't appear to be too tired at the finish."

There was considerable talk about the fight at the baseball gathering of the major leagues at the Chase Hotel, too. Many of the visitors had viewed the match on TV.

Frank Slocum, assistant to Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick, said:

"I saw Robinson fight and knock out Norman Rubio in Madison Square Garden in 1942 and I thought he looked as good against Fullmer as he did that night."

This writer, too, was surprised at the great showing of Robinson.

Of Sugar Ray's two fights with Paul Pender this year, each of which Robinson lost in 15 rounds, Fullmer had been expected to stop Robinson possibly within five or six rounds.

And this television score card showed eight rounds for Robinson, five for Fullmer with two even. Our point spread was nine in favor of Robinson.

Different on TV

There is a big difference, of course, in watching a match at ringside and on television and this one was particularly difficult to judge.

Robinson, the former Walker Smith of Detroit, is considered by many experts to be the greatest fighter—for his pounds and inches—in the last 20 years.

In 154 bouts, he has won all except 11, and 93 were knockouts. He lost seven decisions, boxed two draws, one no-decision and was stopped once.

He has been a combination puncher and boxer. In his prime, he possessed a knock-out punch in either hand and was a master boxer who could do everything required of a great ring craftsman.

Joe Maxim stopped him, June 25, 1952, in a bout for the light heavyweight title. Although Robinson appeared to be winning at the end of the thirteenth round, he was unable to come out for the fourteenth because of the torrid heat and the pounding of Maxim.

Ray held the middleweight championship five times and previously was the welterweight titleholder.

Robinson has been a controversial figure in the ring. He always has been arrogant and self-centered and had little regard for the other fellow. Numerous promoters have suffered financial losses because of his refusal to go through with fights after agreeing to do so.

In those instances he asked for a postponement on the ground he was not in the best of condition and didn't want to go into the ring unless he could give his best. Perhaps he was right in this contention.

Now if he decides to call it a career, perhaps Fullmer and Paul Pender, recognized as the 160-pound champion by New York and Massachusetts, may get together and clear the title. But no one soon will forget Sugar Ray or his great effort at the age of 40.

St. Louis Youngsters Making Bids for World Pin Berths

Chapis, Maloy, Orf Have 200 Averages

By John J. Archibald
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CHICAGO, Dec. 5—Three St. Louis-trained youngsters whose single hotel room has been dubbed "Boys Town" were putting up a good fight as the world invitational tournament qualifying moved into its next-to-last sessions today.

While calloused-thumb veterans of the Budweiser and Falstaff bowling teams were making much of the big news, 20-year-old Dennis Chapis, 19-year-old Gerry Maloy and 18-year-old Ray Orf were still in position to reach the match play finals that start Wednesday. After three days of trials that included 18 games, all were averaging 200 or better.

Chapis, who was second high in the qualifying here two years ago, held sixteenth place with 3709 pins—a 206 average. A strong 1250 series yesterday gave Maloy 3651.

Orf was just a fraction over the 200 figure with his 3618. That put Ray in fiftieth place in the 128-man field, of which 15 will go into the finals with defending champion Don Carter. One of the nation's hottest bowlers, St. Louis's Dick Weber, led the pack as today's action began. He had 3896 pins for a 216 average. Andy Marzich, Inglewood, Calif., had 3877, and Detroit's Joe Joseph, 3872.

Other St. Louisans among the leaders were Billy Welu, fifth, with 3842, and Ray Bluth, eighth with 3781.

Witness Barone Fails to Show at Boxing Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (UPI)—Fighter manager Joseph P. Barone, the scheduled first witness in the renewed Senate investigation of boxing, failed to show up today. He was reported hospitalized from "severe anxiety" and stomach trouble.

But chairman Estes Kefauver, (Dem.), Tennessee, refused to accept at face value the explanation offered on the behalf of Barone, who manages top-ranking heavyweight Charles (Sonny) Liston, former St. Louisan.

He called for an impartial medical examination of the Allentown, Pa., fight manager.

other side to Retzlaff, who easily scored on a 22-yard touchdown pass.

Walston's second field goal, from the 39, made it 13-0 early in the second half after Retzlaff beat Jimmy Hill for a 39-yard receiving gain at the Card 32.

The Cards closed the gap when Jerry Norton got his tenth interception of the season and Crow ran, dodged, fumbled and recovered for a 23-yard gain to set up Mel Hammack's two-yard touchdown plunge.

But when Bobby Joe Conrad committed the rare lapse of missing the extra point kick, the Cards still trailed by seven, 13 to 6.

It made little difference. Van Brocklin pitched to McDonald for a 25-yard touchdown pass early in the fourth quarter and all the king's horses, or King Hill, couldn't put the Cards together again.

Ambrose Upset, 4-1; Kutis Is 2-1 Victor

By Dent McSkimming

It's the forceful St. Engelbert team—and not St. Ambrose—that national amateur Kutis will have to overcome to retain local supremacy in the cup competition.

Engelbert, finally putting together a combination of forwards who can score goals, rubbed Ambrose right out of the amateur cup title picture yesterday, at Fairground Park. The victory, 4 goals to 1, put Engelbert in the local semifinal round where it will oppose Kutis Dec. 18.

The champions, almost stopped by goalie Dave Robben, had to work very hard to defeat Schumachers, 2-1, in the second game of a thrilling doubleheader at Fairground Park.

In the lower half of the draw, Northwestern moved up by defeating Polish N.A., 3-1, and St. Kevin overcame Holy Rosary 4-3.

St. Engelbert Improved

From the start of the season, St. Ambrose has had trouble gathering goals. A week ago, for example, the Italian boys led by John Traina, barely defeated Schumachers, 1-0, in a U. S. Open Cup game. That victory was good enough to put Ambrose in the local final but this strange lack of scoring power (two goals in two cup games) is likely to make them an easy victim for Kutis next Sunday.

St. Engelbert, on the other hand, started the season slow. In a C.Y.C. league match, Ed Scott's team was soundly spanked by St. Ambrose. So, most fans expected Charley Colombo and his mates to do it again in the Amateur Cup. But Engelbert has steadily improved while Ambrose stood still.

Kutis Has Close Call. Schumachers were far more effective than most of the 1000 spectators had expected, as they threw another scare into Kutis. However, their lone goal came from an outside-the-penalty-line free kick, by John Baker. Ruben Mendoza scored both Kutis goals. Lack of a scoring punch they quit blocking. And with great respect for Philadelphia's pass defense and little for his own passing game, the St. Louis coach kept the Cardinals' nose to the ground, the low road.

It was a relief, anyway, to learn by switching from John Roach to King Hill with seven minutes left. Ivy hadn't meant to imply that the quarterback had been at fault, the coach said. Roach hadn't thrown enough—two for five—to be held accountable.

Coming along as he has this season, Long John could become a pretty good quarterback, yet never match the marvelous Van Brocklin, who stood before his locker, tying a Windsor knot in his tie, and talked of "just one more" before retirement.

Training Too Tough

Quit at these prices? "It's only money and I can't stand the training grind anymore," said the famed quarterback.

Although Van appeared guilty of reckless indiscretion when he had the game just about tucked away, he had put constant pressure on the Cardinals' stout defense with his precision passing and powerful punting. Why, ducking out from under a rushing line, he completed some passes with a sidearm delivery like the Dodgers' Don Drysdale.

Accurate long and short, he ranked his Philadelphia receivers with the pass-catching pair he had known at Los Angeles. Tom Fears and Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch. And he praised the old coach, Shaw, with whom he'll bow out—and perhaps succeed.

"As Buck said," Van Brocklin observed, "we were terrible in our first league game and didn't really begin to roll until we beat Detroit three weeks later. The spirit since has been great. Imagine, not even having a letdown this week after those two big ones with New York!"

But no champagne with which to celebrate?

The Dutchman shook his head. "No," he said, "but there sure better be some beer on that plane."

On the high road to home.

Carswell Contessa, Handled by Woman, Wins Springer Trial

A six-year-old Illinois Springer spaniel field trial champion, Carswell Contessa, defeated a field of 41 dogs to capture the 1960 National English Springer Spaniel championship in a three-day trial which was concluded at Weldon Spring Sunday.

The victor was handled by Mrs. Philip Armour Jr., Chicago, who was awarded the best amateur handler trophy. It was the first time a woman ever handled a national winner.

Camac Samburg Sharpie, owned by Ruxroy Kennels, Grose Point, Mich., and handled by Elmore C. Chick, Lemont, Ill., was second.

Kutis Five Wins

Kutis defeated the Jeffersons, 40-36, in the Greater St. Louis Girls Basketball League at Vashon Center, yesterday. Betty Zaitz of the winners, and Lou Fox of the losers each scored 14 points.

LEGAL BATTLE OVER ILLINOIS VOTE POSSIBLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—Democrats braced today for possible legal conflict with the Illinois Electoral Board when a Cook county recount of the Nov. 8 Presidential vote produced a small net gain over official returns for Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Cook county officials proceeded with arrangements to swear in the new slate of officers. The county offices were swept by Democrats.

The recount of 156 precincts where paper ballots were used showed Nixon gaining 108 votes, and President-elect John F. Kennedy 42 for a net Nixon gain of 66.

Kennedy won Illinois' 27 electoral votes by a margin of 8849 votes. Republicans have charged that fraud and irregularities in Cook county helped Kennedy win and that the recount would provide the evidence to take the matter into court.

Another Threat

From another quarter, the Democrats are threatened with the withholding of certification for Kennedy's electors by the Republican-dominated State Electoral Board. Gov. William G. Stratton, defeated Republican who heads the board, said such action might be taken if the recount furnishes substantial evidence of fraud.

Top Democrats said, however, they consider this threat an empty one.

State Treasurer Joseph D. Lohman, only Democrat on the five-man electoral panel, told a reporter: "The sole function of the board is to finalize the official canvasses from the 102 counties and to proclaim the results. Any other action is beside the meaning and purpose of the statutes."

Petitions reportedly have been submitted to the board by G.O.P. election officials from Cook county asking that certification be delayed or withheld pending a determination of fraud.

Possible Action

James A. Ronan, Democratic state chairman, said he doubted that Stratton would make good his threat. If Stratton should, however, Ronan outlined these possible courses of Democratic action:

1. A mandamus suit in United States District Court to compel certification on grounds the civil rights of voters had been violated.

2. The casting of the 27 electoral votes in Springfield on Dec. 19 notwithstanding the board's action, thus carrying the fight for certification to the House of Representatives on Jan. 6.

Cook county Republicans, eyeing the possibility of court action, contended yesterday that 10,000 paper ballots will be invalidated because of alleged improprieties uncovered in the recount. Such invalidation, they maintained, could throw the Illinois election to Nixon.

AUTHORITIES AGAIN SEEK SUSPECT IN ALTON KILLING

Andrew C. Acker of Alton, charged with murder in the 1955 killing of Leroy Stutz, an Alton newspaper vendor, was again being sought today.

Indicted in Madison county in May 1955 shortly after Stutz's body, with the skull fractured, was found in a Jersey county creek, Acker was arrested in Florida in July 1959 on a federal fugitive warrant. He pleaded not guilty at Edwardsville and was released on $7500 bond.

About a month ago Acker was indicted by a Jersey county grand jury because the body had been found there and there was no evidence that the killing had been committed in Madison county. Jersey County State's Attorney Claude Davis said police have been unable to find Acker on the recent indictment.

CONTRACTOR GETS $30,777 AWARD FOR FAA RADAR WORK

A $30,777 contract for construction of a radar microwave link in the West has been awarded to the Schanche Construction & Engineering Co., 5511 Sutherland avenue, the Federal Aviation Agency announced today.

The link will connect the Air Route Traffic Control Center in Denver, Colo., with the FAA's radar facilities now under construction at Grant and Grant, Nebr. When completed, the radar facility will control air traffic within a radius of 120 miles of the site.

Radar information received by these units will be sent to Denver where FAA controllers will use it to route and control aircraft within that area.

DEATH IN OXYGEN TENT FIRE IS HELD TO BE AN ACCIDENT

A coroner's jury ruled today that the death last Thursday of an elderly woman burned in an oxygen tent at City Hospital was accidental.

Mrs. Mary Edwards, 62114 South Broadway, suffered severe burns over 45 per cent of her body when the tent caught fire on Nov. 25. The woman, 73 years old, had been admitted to the hospital earlier in the day for a heart condition.

A hospital attendant heard screams and pulled the woman from the bed and smothered the flames with a blanket. Cause of the fire, which was confined to the bed, was not determined.

BRITISH CATHOLIC, ANGLICAN BISHOPS TOGETHER ON TV

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP)—Archbishops of the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches appeared together on television last night and joined in an appeal to end bigotry and religious intolerance.

They commented hopefully on last week's meeting between Pope John XXIII and the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher.

"It is going to do a great deal as a signpost to the possibility of charity," said Dr. Arthur Ramsey, Anglican Archbishop of York.

The Catholic Archbishop of Liverpool, the Most Rev. Dr. J. C. Heenan, said progress in relations between Catholics and Protestants "depends greatly on the individual, upon his abolition of ignorance, bigotry and intolerance."

Several British newspapers commented on what they called the coldness of the Vatican's reception of the Archbishop.

"It is impossible to ignore the almost icy formality with which the Vatican seemed to be surrounding the visit," the Sunday Times said.

In Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express, columnist John Gordon wrote:

TRUCKER PERSONNEL RELATIONS STRESSED

Personnel relations are a vital function of management and can be the difference between success and failure of a business, President Eisenhower's special assistant for personnel management said here yesterday.

Eugene J. Lyons, addressing delegates to the twenty-third annual convention of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association at the Chase Hotel, said the importance of personnel relations often is lost in big organizations.

"Most human beings are motivated by a strong desire to belong in the society in which they live and work," he said. He said this is as true of the truck driver as it is of the vice president and added: "Unfortunately, in a large organization, it is all too easy for employees to lose their feeling of pride and identity with their work and with the company objectives and accomplishments."

He suggested that one way to improve personnel relations is to invite employees to participate in phases of the policy-making process by consulting with them on points of special interest. He listed pay-setting, promotions, grievances, suggestions, safety and labor relations among topics where employee comment can be helpful.

In another speech, James F. Lincoln, chairman of the Lincoln Electric Co., Cleveland, said that while the prosperity of the nation depends on a high wage scale, American business men are losing markets here and abroad because of rising labor and material costs.

He said the solution must come from increased productivity which can be achieved by assuring workers of full and continuous employment and providing them with money incentives for improved work.

Several awards were made at a banquet following the speeches. At a breakfast session this morning, Wyatt F. DeLoache, manager of the Midwest division, E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., said, "There are those who regard big business as fair game in all seasons and conceal the fact that big business can't possibly do and should not be expected to attempt."

John J. Gill of Providence, R.I., president of the American Trucking Association, was scheduled to speak later today on problems confronting the trucking industry when Congress convenes next month.

The convention, with 600 delegates in attendance, will close with a dinner-dance tonight.

10 FROM CUBA ARE EXPELLED BY VENEZUELA

CARACAS, Dec. 5 (UPI)—The government has expelled 10 Cubans from Venezuela and is investigating about 40 others in an effort to determine whether Fidel Castro's Cuban regime fostered last week's riots.

The government has declined to comment so far on the United States charge that Castro followers supplied money and arms to Communist-led student rioters who sought to overthrow President Romulo Betancourt.

Informed sources said the government would make no charge against the Castro regime unless it could find indisputable proof of its participation in the "conspiracy."

No announcement was expected from the Foreign Ministry until police and examining magistrates complete their interrogation of the rioters.

Half a dozen leaders of the left-wing MIR party were arrested over the weekend.

By the Associated Press.

Four Latin American nations sent congratulations to Betancourt for crushing what he called a leftist uprising.

Messages expressing "sympathy and solidarity" have been received from Argentina, Colombia, Mexico and Peru, the presidential palace said.

There is a belief here now that Venezuela probably will not ask the Organization of American States to act against Castro's regime.

THREE IN CABINET TO STAND BY FOR KENNEDY BRIEFING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (UPI)—President Eisenhower has directed his top military, diplomatic and fiscal advisers to stand by to brief President-elect John F. Kennedy tomorrow if Kennedy wishes to see them, the White House said today.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. and Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson will be waiting in the Cabinet room while Mr. Eisenhower and Kennedy confer alone in the President's office.

Their discussion on transfer of power to the incoming administration also may include Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, Mr. Eisenhower's top staff assistant, and Clark Clifford, Kennedy's liaison man with the White House.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said it would be up to Mr. Eisenhower and Kennedy to decide if they want Herter, Gates and Anderson brought into their private conference.

Asked if the President and his successor would have any state-ment after their talks tomorrow, Hagerty replied "I think not."

JURY UNABLE TO AGREE ON ASSAULT CASE VERDICT

A jury was unable to agree on a verdict Saturday at the trial of Alect Askew and Thomas C. Curry on rape charges, and the case is to be reassigned for a new trial. The jury foreman reported the members of the jury deadlocked at 11 to one for conviction.

The trial was in the court of Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh. Askew and Curry, who live in the 1300 block of Hamilton avenue, were charged with raping a young mother last July.

Revolution

of a workers and peasant state, but to their "own kind," who have been systematically uprooted from the government over the past year.

Specifically they credit Manuel Ray, Castro's first Minister of Public Works and an efficient organizer of civil resistance against Batista. This reputedly mild-mannered, modest engineer is now the champion of a new opposition dedicated to the "recovery of the revolution."

THEIR GRIEVANCES against the Castro government are many. They accuse it of a vengeful instead of prudent policy toward the United States, of alienating the trained and liberal forces in Cuba who could have calmly rebuilt her society, of reimposing dictatorship, of wrecking the sources of Cuba's economic wealth and making her wholly dependent on minimal Soviet aid, of tolerating the constant advance of Communist personnel and indoctrination of crippling organized labor and suppressing all civil rights.

Many of Castro's opponents have fled, but thousands remain even though idle. They live on savings and the sale of possessions; they thrive on whispered gossip. They deplore the anti-Castro voices of exiles on radio SWAN, which they say is heard widely in Cuba but is ridiculed for its hysteria and misinformation.

For the disillusioned who remain, the greatest hope was perhaps best expressed in a downtown movie here last Sunday afternoon. A newsreel showed Fidel Castro and there was a trickle of applause. It showed President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon and there was silence. It showed President-elect Kennedy and there was a long and fervent ovation in the anonymous darkness.

Wine Jellies Solve Gift Problems

On almost every Christmas list there is at least one person who "has everything." The solution may be found right in one's own kitchen. Wine jellies have an air of luxury, but actually can be made at modest cost.

Do plan to make some jars of this delicacy, plain or spiced, before the days grow crowded.

The gift may be made as elaborate as one wishes by using interesting glasses, jars, mugs or cups. Apothecary jars also make attractive containers and may be used in many ways after the jelly has been enjoyed.

Consider this holiday wine jelly as a basic recipe; try it with a variety of wines as suggested.
The spiced wine jelly is, of course, deeper in color.

It is not necessary to use expensive imported wines for these jellies; domestic wines, such as those made from the grape-growing areas of New York state, will give full-bodied flavor.

Holiday Wine Jelly.

Two cups claret or burgundy wine.

Three cups sugar.

One-half bottle liquid fruit
pectin.

Mix wine and sugar in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water, stirring occasionaly until sugar is dissolved, about two minutes.

Remove from heat and at once stir in the fruit pectin. Pour quickly into glasses. Skim if necessary.

Cover jelly at once with one-eighth inch hot paraffin.

Yield: five to six glasses.

Note: Serve rich red claret or burgundy wine jelly with red meat or poultry. For variety, use port, dry sherry or sauterne in this recipe. Tawny port jelly is superb with goose, duck, or wild fowl.

Spiced Wine Jelly.

Three cups sugar.

Two cups wine.

One tablespoon (about 24)
whole cloves.

One tablespoon broken stick cinnamon.

Two teaspoons whole allspice.

The solution to many a gift problem may be found in one's own kitchen. For instance, wine jellies may be made at modest cost, yet have an air of luxury. A variety of interesting containers can make the gift as elaborate as desired.

One-half bottle liquid fruit
pectin.

Measure sugar into large bowl;
set aside.

Measure wine and spices into top part of double boiler and cover. Heat over rapidly boiling water three minutes. Remove from heat.

Four heated wine mixture over sugar through a strainer that has been lined with a double thickness of cheesecloth. Stir until sugar is completely dissolved.

At once add all the fruit pectin and mix well. Pour quickly into glasses.

Cover jelly at once with one-eighth inch hot paraffin.

glasses jelly.

Glazed With Beer

New zest can be added to an old favorite in this quick and easy main dish for family or guests. That venerable companion to a good meal—beer—also can be used to give new body and flavor to meats. Ham steak basted with beer has distinctive flavor.

In this easy-to-prepare dish, beer is mixed with ground cloves and brown sugar to provide a tangy glaze. The flavor of the beer complements the taste of the ham and other ingredients.

Serve with glass of beer to accent the flavor of that used as an ingredient.

Glazed Baked Ham Steak.

Have the ham slice cut one-half to one inch thick, allowing one-fourth to one-third pound per person. Score the ham fat with a sharp knife, cutting deeply into diamond shaped cuts.

Place in a shallow baking dish.

Mix one-half cup of dark brown sugar, one-eighth teaspoon of ground cloves and one-fourth cup of beer. Pour over the ham. Bake in a moderately

Vanilla ice cream layered with a rosy cranberry sauce and topped with a sprig of holly makes this colorful holiday dessert.

Holly Berry Parfaits For Yuletide

Here's a recipe to clip and save for your holiday entertaining. It couldn't be simpler; the parfaits are just ice cream in holiday dress.

Vanilla ice cream is layered with a rosy cranberry sauce and topped with a sprig of holly.

Holly Berry Parfaits.

Two cups whole cranberries. One (three and one-half inch) stick cinnamon.

One cup water. One cup sugar. Dash salt. One quart vanilla ice cream. Place cranberries, cinnamon stick and water in saucepan. Bring to boil, cover and simmer five minutes. Add sugar and salt; cook uncovered about two minutes to thoroughly dissolve sugar. Cool; remove cinnamon stick.

Alternate cranberry sauce and ice cream in parfait glasses or tall tumblers, reserving a small amount of the sauce for topping. Store in freezer until ready to serve. Top with sauce and sprig of holly.

Yield: Six parfaits.

CHEESE TURNOVERS

Tiny cheese turnovers make delicate but delicious accompaniments to a salad luncheon plate. Blend two cups pastry mix, one cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese and water to hold ingredients together; press into ball. Roll out as for pie crust, about one-eighth inch thick. Cut into biscuit-sized rounds, placing a walnut-stuffed date on one half. Fold over; crimp edges with a fork. Bake in a 425 degree oven until nicely browned.

WHEN TOASTING NUTS

FOES ACCUSE HOFFA OF UNION VOTE PLOT

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—An insurgent group complained to the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee yesterday that Teamsters international president James R. Hoffa was trying to wreck an election in a powerful Teamsters local in New York.

The anti-Hoffa faction sent a telegram to Senator John J. McClellan, (Dem.), Arkansas, chairman of the committee, asking him to look into the situation.

Hoffa and John J. O'Rourke, the pro-Hoffa president of the New York Teamsters local, have conspired to prevent O'Rourke's "nearly certain defeat" in the election, the telegram said. O'Rourke is being opposed for the local presidency by Andrew Boggia, a long-time rival of the O'Rourke leadership.

The insurgent group said Hoffa and O'Rourke had postponed the election from today to Dec. 11 and now had posted notices it would not be held until Dec. 18. In addition, it was charged, they also have sent out notices saying the American Arbitration Association had been dismissed. The election was to have been held under supervision of the association.

The insurgents contended the association was ousted because one of its arbitrators ruled that only union members with dues paid up by Oct. 1 would be allowed to vote.

O'Rourke and Hoffa, they said, want all members to be eligible whose dues were paid up by the date of the election. The insurgents said they are afraid the Hoffa forces will bring in new members to swing the vote in their favor.

A United States District Judge has set a hearing for tomorrow on whether O'Rourke should be forced to make the dues records public.

VELVET FREEZE SALE CONSIDERED

Sale of the assets of Velvet Freeze, Inc., which manufactures and distributes ice cream in the St. Louis and Kansas City areas, to two new corporations will be considered at a special meeting of stockholders Dec. 22, Sidney M. Martin, president, said today. Operations and personnel of the company would not be changed as a result of the proposed sale, he said. Only the corporate name would be changed.

The St. Louis plant would be sold for $325,000 plus the value of inventories and other assets. In a letter to stockholders, Martin wrote that "the decreased operating net profits over recent years, the uncertain outlook and the fact that there has been excess capital in the business have led to the conclusion that better use of the company's capital can be made."

The purchase price to be received by Velvet Freeze under two contracts exceeds the book value of the assets, Martin said. Martin and Richard S. McQuay, executive vice president of Velvet Freeze, are to be major stockholders in the new corporations.

The proposal to sell the assets of Velvet Freeze requires a favorable vote of three fourths of the outstanding stock. Sales of the company last year amounted to $4,542,000 and net profits were $166,000. During summer peaks, the company employs about 400 persons in the St. Louis area, Martin said.

FRONDIZI THINKS UPRISING HAD ARMY, UNION TIES

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 5 (AP)—President Arturo Frondizi's Argentine security police, suspicious that two quickly crushed Peronist uprisings had military and labor union connections, are rounding up hundreds of persons.

The army especially is criticized for its role in putting down attempts Wednesday to overpower a Rosario infantry regiment and seize a Salta oil field.

Many say it seems suspicious that a group of barely 40 civilians and retired army men could hold out for several hours at Rosario—unless those hours were spent talking with the army officers, not fighting.

The same thing happened in the uprising at the oil center of Tartagal, in Salta province. The provincial army commander there admits the conduct of several officers in the national gendarmerie is under investigation.

Former General Sought.
Army tribunals also are investigating the activities of an undisclosed number of retired officers and non-commissioned officers.

Former Gen. Miguel Angel Iniguez, known for his Peronist and nationalist connections, is reported officially to have led the Rosario uprising. He has been sought for many months.

Frondizi has cracked down on labor unions, always a great source of strength for ousted dictator Juan Peron and considered a possible vehicle for his attempts to return to power. In Buenos Aires, a number of labor union chieftains were arrested.

Alvaro Alsogaray, minister of economy and acting labor minister, said the metal workers' union is under special investigation. He said the union withdrew a huge sum of money from a bank just before the Rosario uprising. The union claims it used the money to buy building materials.

Leaders Arrested.

Police in La Plata raided a General Labor Federation headquarters and arrested several union leaders.

The Foreign Ministry filed a protest with Spain regarding Peron's political activity while in exile there. Frondizi, warning that subversives would be punished harshly, said Peron never would be allowed to rule Argentina again.

There is talk again of a "preventive" coup to unseat Frondizi and install a tough, no-nonsense anti-Peronist and anti-Communist military government.

Frondizi's political opponents charge he was too easy with Peronists in the past and that current subversion is the result.

REBEL DRIVE ON VIENTIANE IS REPORTED DRIVEN BACK

VIENTIANE, Dec. 5 (AP)—Paratroop Capt. Kong Le announced today that government forces have stopped a threatened advance on this Laotian capital by right-wing rebel Gen. Phoumi Nosavan's troops.

He said his outnumbered paratroopers have driven units of Phoumi forces back across the Namkading river, 100 miles east of Vientiane.

The paratrooper, who led the Aug. 9 coup and now commands the government garrison at Vientiane, said both sides have been reinforced but his paratroopers are still outnumbered three to one.

The first shipment of Soviet aid to Laos, an estimated eight tons of gasoline, reached Vientiane yesterday aboard five twin-engine Soviet IL-14 transports from Hanoi, capital of Communist North Viet Nam.

FRUIT FIRM HERE CONSENTS TO FTC BAR ON BROKERAGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—A consent order barring the National Florida Fruit Co. of St. Louis from receiving illegal brokerage on purchase of citrus fruit for its own account from Florida packers was approved today by the Federal Trade Commission. The commission said the agreement was for settlement purposes and did not constitute an admission by the firm that it had violated provisions of the Clayton Act.

National Florida is at 93-95 Produce Row in St. Louis.

Japan's Population Up.

TOKYO, Dec. 5 (UPI)—Japan's population has jumped to 93,406,445 an increase of 4,130,916 in five years, census figures disclosed today. This made Japan the fifth most populous nation of the world behind Communist China, India, the Soviet Union and the United States.

OFFICER KILLED BY ROBBER NAMED TO HALL OF FAME

St. Louis Patrolman Thomas P. Mulrooney, who was fatally wounded by an armed robber in 1956, has been made a member of the National Police Officers Association hall of fame, Mrs. Mulrooney learned yesterday.

Mrs. Mulrooney, 1226 Sells avenue, said the announcement came from the association's headquarters in Port Charlotte, Fla., and was accompanied by a letter of congratulation from Chief of Police Curtis Brostrom.

Mulrooney and another Patrolman, James Prost, interrupted a robbery at a North St. Louis tavern March 16, 1956. Mulrooney was severely wounded by a shotgun blast in the leg, and died of blood poisoning the following April 21.

5 FRENCH REVOLT LEADERS FLEE IN MIDST OF TRIAL

PARIS, Dec. 5 (AP)—Bearded ex-paratrooper Pierre Lagailarde and four co-defendants in the Algiers insurrection trial disappeared today. They were reported to have fled to Spain.

The dramatic disappearance heightened fear that trouble is brewing in Algeria timed to coincide with President De Gaulle's visit there Friday.

Lagailarde and his co-defendants in the Jan. 24 French settlers' uprising were not in the courtroom when the trial resumed this afternoon. Their lawyers expressed consternation and one suggested that the defendants feared they were going to be imprisoned during the rest of the trial.

The prosecutor demanded that arrest warrants be immediately drawn up for four of the missing men and that the military tribunal hearing the case start action to remove Lagailarde's immunity as a member of Parliament so he also could be arrested.

Ignores Demand.

To the surprise of court observers, the tribunal ignored the demand for the present and ordered a two-day recess.

Lagailarde's lawyer, Jean Gallot, said he had received an anonymous telephone call this morning saying Lagailarde had crossed into Spain to join Gen. Raoul Salan.

Salan, former commander in Algeria, left for Spain Oct. 30, ostensibly for a vacation, after publicly denouncing De Gaulle's policy of self-determination for rebellious Algeria.

The trial went into recess last Wednesday. Lagailarde and his wife left Paris the next day, saying they were going to visit a relative in southern France.

Lagailarde manned the barricades in Algiers in the uprising by settlers who feared De Gaulle was selling them out to the rebellious Algerian nationalists. He was imprisoned after the uprising collapsed.

Recently he was given provisional liberty, free to travel within France while not in court answering charges of attacking the security of the state. No bail bond is required in France and the five missing men now are considered fugitives.

Other Fugitives.

Missing along with Lagailarde were these four among the other 14 defendants:

Jean Marie Demarquet, another former paratroop officer; Jean Claude Susini, a right-wing student leader, and Ronda and Fernand Feral, lesser trial figures.

If they have gone to Spain, they could be expected to contact Salan and possibly Joseph Ortiz, who with Lagailarde led the January uprising. Ortiz, a former Algiers bar owner, fled over Algiers rooftops when the insurrection began to crumble. He is said to spend most of his time in Spain or on the nearby island of Majorca. He recently called for an uprising in France against De Gaulle.

De Gaulle is scheduled to fly to Algeria to campaign for his Algerian program, which he says will lead to self-government. He has called a referendum for January to test support in France for his program.

ALGIERS, Dec. 5 (AP)—Fifty-seven Algerian rebels were killed in a clash with French troops near Batna in eastern Algiers last Thursday, a French army communique said yesterday. Army sources said 10 French Legionnaires were killed and 15 wounded.

$500,000 SOUGHT FOR HOME-BUZZER WARNING SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—The Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization will ask for $500,000 of federal funds to equip Michigan for a state-wide test of the new home-buzzer system of warning against nuclear attack.

OCMD Director Leo J. Hoegh said the test, to be held next year if the new Congress provides the money, could lead to nation-wide installation of the equipment.

The little black buzzer box, which plugs into any electrical outlet, was tested successfully in Charlotte, Mich., Oct. 11.

Michigan was chosen for the 1961 state-wide test, Hoegh said, because Battle Creek is OCMD's operational headquarters and because the Consumer Power Co. already has installed devices which make the buzzers go off—at Battle Creek and Grand Rapids.

When a button is pushed it activates the generators, which send a pulse over commercial power lines setting off the buzzers. The noise is loud enough to awaken sleepers.

Retired Envoy Honored.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 5 (AP)—Jefferson Caffery, retired American ambassador, received the Plan order yesterday. He was the first United States citizen ever awarded the decoration, third highest bestowed by the Vatican. The Plan order was created in 1847 by Pope Pius IX. Caffery served as United States ambassador to Cuba, Brazil, France and Egypt.

Squeeze Play By Dali

Surrealist artist Salvador Dali demonstrating his newest painting technique in Paris. Dali places opened tubes of paint on a glass plate on a printing press and achieves his effect by squashing the tubes with a press head. The work, using 666 shades of paint, is for a unique edition of "The Apocalypse of St. John." Six other artists are contributing their work to the book for which Michele Nicholas, a 28-year-old polio victim, is hand-writing the text.

Just a Quiet Night On the Police Beat

MIAMI, Dec. 5.
THE BLACK CAR pulled away from the curb. The man lifted the microphone, depressed the cam and said: "Eight thirty . . . Ten twenty one." Eight thirty is Lt. Jack Tuckfield's number. Ten twenty one meant that he had finished his coffee and was back on duty. A woman dispatcher's voice came in from Dade County Public Safety Department.

JIM BISHOP

on the radio. He had the boy with the shotgun. The other one was running through backyards. When the lieutenant arrived, Tex was standing with his back to Busby and his wrists were in handcuffs.

Busby is fat and wears his panama brim up, like Jack Leonard. "Who's the boy was with you?" he said. The boy who had the shotgun shrugged. The detectives conferred for a moment. Other cars came up, their brazen lights showing the fear on dark faces in hallways.

Tuckfield got back in his car. He called in and left the scene, roaming the night streets. Dade county covers 2230 miles and 800,000 people of assorted dispositions. The police department is new. It took over the old sheriff's office in May 1957 and it now has 560 men on the roster. The new police department covers all the towns except Miami and Hialeah.

The lieutenant moved on to the Palace. This is a big juke box hangout with an odor of stale wine in the air. He walked in through the din of the music and watched the men and the cheap women in tight sweaters. He looked for knives, arguments among customers. There were none. It was a quiet night. In the car, he called in again. The dispatcher said that there had been an accident in Funland Park.

Tuckfield drove out. Sometimes, he takes his four boys to Funland, but he can't stand some of the wild rides. They scare him. He pulled into the park and saw two patrolmen carrying flashlights. They led him to the scene. A ride called the Whip had come apart. One of the cars ripped off the rails and spun a man and his wife into the guard rail. They were in Jackson Memorial Hospital. He drove there. They weren't badly hurt.

Next he went to the police ward. Two policemen stood inside. A man was on a table on his side, both wrists handcuffed behind him. He had gone berserk. A small woman, 55, sat on a stool. She wore the white dachon of a waitress. Her knees knocked. Her hands shook so that she could not get the cigarette to her mouth. "I'm gonna die, doc," she said to Tuckfield. "I'm gonna die. Please gimme a drink."

A prisoner in a wheelchair pointed to the old waitress. "I had the shakes," he said sadly, "but never like that."

The car pulled away and cruised the cheap white sections and then the Negro sections. A group of men argued in front of Cal's Bar. The lieutenant passed the place, and stopped. He called for another car. A detective pulled up beside him two minutes later. "Let's go back to Cal's place," the lieutenant said, "and shake it down." They did. The men in front stopped arguing, and parted slowly before the detectives.

Inside, a juke box and a floor fan hummed. The detectives looked at the crowded faces of men and women packed tight. The faces looked back.

Across the street in a parking lot, a shot split the air. Both men left the bar and ran to the scene. Two boys were in a car with girls. The lieutenant shone his flashlight in. The boys were laughing so hard they could only point.

They pointed to the car parked beside theirs. It had blown out a front tire. The laughter was contagious. The policeman had to laugh. Tuckfield shook his head. "It's a quiet night," he said. "I think I'll knock off early."

Ann Landers

Dad Married the Girl

Dear Ann Landers:

THE ADVICE you gave to "Worried Kids" whose father took up with a woman 40 years his junior, stank. We had a similar situation and this is what happened:

Dad started to date this girl who was 30 years younger. He bought her expensive clothes and jewelry. She drove his car everywhere. I tried to talk some sense into his head but it was useless. Finally I got so disgusted I forgot I was a lady and pulled several chunks of her blonde hair out by the black roots.

Well, Dad married her. Four months later he died of a heart attack. We are now engaged in a nasty court fight. The bills she ran up are charged to my father so the estate must pay them. This means part of MY money is going to pay HER bills!

If I had it to do over again I would manage somehow to make my Dad see the error of his ways. He would be alive today instead of dead at 63.

BEEN THROUGH IT.
Dear Been: Your response to my advice is so illogical I don't know where to begin! You say if you had it to do over you'd manage somehow to make him see the error of his ways. Like how? What more could you have said or done—short of murder?

My advice to "Worried Kids" was to express themselves—then keep quiet. Beyond that, there's nothing that CAN be done. Your experience proved that I was right.

Dear Ann:

MY FATHER is a very nice guy but he embarrasses me. He's a barber, and a good one, but every guy who comes into this house gets a sales talk and a business card.

The pitch goes like this: "Who cut your hair? You look like the barber was trying to get even with you for something. If you want a GOOD haircut . . ." and then out comes his business card.

I've asked him to stop it but he says "It pays to advertise." I told him I was going to write for your opinion. He made me inclose this card—for your husband. Thank you.

EMMA.
Dear Emma: A commercial pitch to guests in your home is in extremely bad taste. Thanks for the card but we live in Chicago and it would be inconvenient for my husband to go to Little Rock for his haircuts.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of the Post-Dispatch, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

1. LOOKING FOR A NOV. EL, personalized Christmas card? Then why not design your own? Begin by securing an enlarged snapshot of yourself to a piece of folded parchment. There's plenty of scribble room on the inside for a personal note. All you need to duplicate the card held by Shirley Bonne is a pine branch, a real or artificial snowball and a shutter-happy friend to take the picture.

2. YOU CAN ACHIEVE elegance without too much expense with photo greetings. Shirley, who stars in CBS-TV's "My Sister Eileen," demonstrates how a piece of cardboard with an oval cut in the center, and decals secured around the opening "frames" your well-wishes. A centerpiece of holly and vigil candles add to the holiday scene.

3. A PHOTO minus a parchment backing also can be sent as a tag on a gift. Leave adequate space on the tag for "To" and "From."

P. S. Want a cute snowman and Santa pattern from which to make clever package tie-ons, corsages and skirt pockets? Then, send 5c and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to "Youth Parade Holiday Cut-outs," care of the Post-Dispatch. Because of volume of mail, all requests must include coin and stamped envelopes.

The Boyle Plan for Federal Fat Control

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.
IT IS TIME the Federal Government did something to help the fat man.

As it is now, nobody does much for the fat man except jeer him.

"Hi, Tubby," they say, poking him in the stomach. "Aren't you putting on a little weight?"

Yet fat people are vital to the American economy. Since we have some 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 overweight people, they outnumber farmers or manufacturers by a large margin.

Congress regularly rushes to the rescue of the farmer with crop benefit payments and to the aid of the manufacturer with protective tariffs.

But the only Government help fat people get is a periodic warning from the United States Public Health Service that if they don't lose weight they probably won't live as long.

This is not enough. If fat people are a great natural resource—and they are!—they should be treated as such. The Government should encourage them to reduce by offering them solid inducements, just as it helps the farmer and the manufacturer and the oil well owners.

For example, why not a fat depletion allowance on your income tax?

Under this plan your doctor would indicate how much overweight you were, and give you a diet. Then when you went to pay your income tax, the collector would give you a one per cent reduction for each pound you had lost, in recognition of your valiant and patriotic effort to save a worthwhile part of America—namely yourself.

Other inducements, of course, are possible. Since obesity has been medically found to be harder to cure (over a period of years) than cancer, any fat man or woman who takes off his blubber and keeps it off is a real hero.

Then why not recognize them from a grateful Government. They would entitle the wearer to seats in crowded subways and buses, the right to park his car in restricted areas, tickets on the 50-yard line at football games and a place of honor on the reviewing stand at all parades and public ceremonies.

Naturally an honor such as this would have to be continuously earned. All ex-fatties would have to step on the scales twice a year at nationwide weigh-ins and prove they still were heroes.

Backsliders—those who had gained weight—would be ruthlessly stripped of their medals and privileges, and drummed out of the heroes' corps. In another six months they could try again.

As a final reward for long valor, the Government might grant full Social Security pensions at 60 (instead of 62 or 65) to all men and women who had kept their weight down continuously for 25 years or more.

A federal fat control program such as herein outlined may sound like another raid on the Treasury by another special privilege group.

Actually, it isn't. Unlike the federal farm surplus program it probably would more than pay its own way—because it would keep millions of former fat people alive longer, paying taxes years beyond their expected span.

One thing you can say about any one who opposes this program of national recognition. He ain't a fat man. The fat man already gets enough advice. What he needs is real help with a weighty problem.

These medals would be more than mere symbols of thanks

as such? Why shouldn't Congress strike off medals to honor them as "heroes of the battle of the human bulge, and saviors of the national waistline?"

A medal would go to anyone who lost 10 pounds, a medal with one oak leaf cluster to those who lost 15 pounds; a medal with five oak leaf clusters to those who lost 35 or more pounds.

Art Buchwald Some 'Americans Go Home' Ideas

FOR YEARS those of us who have lived in Europe have seen signs scrawled on walls, "Americans Go Home." We didn't pay any attention to them as we knew they were painted in the early hours of the morning, either by Communists or embittered young men who lost their girls to American G.I.s.

ART BUCHWALD

But now it's official. The President of the United States wants American dependents to come home and real fast. The President's announcement came as a shock because for three months preceding the election, we were assured by him, and Mr. Nixon and everyone in the Republican party, that things couldn't be better with the United States and that economy-wise and prestige-wise we were sitting on the top of the world.

Now even before all the votes have been counted we're told that the United States economy is indeed in trouble and if we don't get the wives and children of our soldiers and sailors back to the United States, they're going to spend us all into bankruptcy.

Everyone is upset over the news, as indeed they should be. The dependents are upset for obvious reasons, but the nationals in countries where our servicemen are stationed are also upset. You can say what you will about American servicemen, but they are the biggest spenders of any army in the world and they have brought happiness to shopkeepers, restaurant owners, bartenders and bar girls the world over.

And while there are a few nationalists who will celebrate the departure of G.I. dependents, the majority of the people will be sorry to see them go because the dependents always brought a little part of America with them wherever they went.

The question now is which dependents should be sent home first. One suggestion, by a colonel who shall remain nameless, is that priority be given to all wives who wear Bermuda shorts or slacks in French or German towns.

This could possibly take care of 50,000 dependents.

A second suggestion comes from another colonel who is a friend of the first colonel. He says there are probably thousands of servicemen who secretly would like to see their wives sent home, but are too frightened to say so.

The colonel suggests that large black ballot boxes be placed in front of the offices of the commanding officers on each base, where the men could "volunteer" the names of their wives.

The boxes would be guarded by M.P.s and only the C.O. would have access to them.

The colonel thinks this would take care of another 150,000 dependents, which is almost the goal President Eisenhower has set for the armed forces.

The rest of the quota could be made up by G.I. parents who would like to get their children out of their hair.

It is true that American dependents are responsible for a certain amount of spending abroad but in fairness to them, it is nothing comparable to what the American tourist spends outside the United States.

But the United States has been unable to get many foreign tourists to come to America. The strongest and wealthiest country in the world still doesn't have a national tourist office, nor has any effort, except by the airline companies, been made to encourage people to visit us and bring back some of that gold the Americans have been spending abroad.

One of our first suggestions, though this will probably get us a subpoena to appear before the Senate Internal Security Committee, is that if we're really serious about wanting tourists, we have to do away with tourist visa requirements in the United States. Although Americans are no longer required to have visas to visit any country in Western Europe, the United States still requires foreign tourists to apply for them if they want to visit America.

This is a very distasteful procedure for most foreigners and is one of the reasons they haven't wanted to come to the United States, although many of them have the desire to pay us a visit.

The argument, of course, is that if we do away with tourist visas a lot of spies could sneak into the country. But that's a very narrow-minded attitude. After all spies spend money, too.

Mrs. Kennedy's New Social Secretary

Letitia Baldrige Is Old School Friend; Served in Paris and Rome Embassies

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (UPI)

LETITIA BALDRIGE, who will become White House social secretary next month, combines the charm and assurance of a career diplomat with the breezy forthrightness of her Nebraska background and the appearance of a fashion model.

Her nickname, Tish, is her only diminutive feature.

Now in her early 30s, she stands an erect 6 feet 1½ inches in her stocking feet, which more often are encased in custom-made, high-heeled Italian shoes.

Her blond hair is swept back from her forehead in an expensively casual coiffure, and she carries herself with the easy grace of an athlete.

She likes to wear "easy fitting" suits during the day, simple black crepe dresses, and jewels with just about everything. Diamonds set in gold are her favorite gems, she said, and French perfume her biggest extravagance.

She spoke knowledgeably of the secretary's duties. They will run the range from organizing state dinner parties to guaranteeing that First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy's life runs as smoothly as possible. Her duties also will include the difficult assignment of making the President's mansion "warm and cozy."

"And I'll have my own parking place at the White House," she added with a grin. "No more driving around blocks, looking for a place to put the car."

Tish approaches the job with enthusiasm but no illusions about the amount of work involved. Inspection tours of the White House under the guidance of the present secretary, Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffrey, prompted an immediate decision.

"I'll keep flat shoes under my desk to wear when I'm working behind scenes," she said. "The amount of footwork in the White House is fantastic."

She had not even a tentative schedule in mind for her working days.

"I know the hours will be simply ghastly—I don't let myself think about that," she said.

Life began grooming her for such a post early in the 1930s when her father, H. Malcolm Baldrige, a Republican, was elected to Congress and the family moved here from Omaha.

As a child she attended the traditional Easter egg rolling parties at the White House when the guest list was limited to children of Cabinet members, Senators and Congressmen.

"It was all very formal and glamorous," she recalled.

She attended Miss Porter's School for Girls at Farmington, Conn., where she met Jacqueline Bouvier, later to become Mrs. John F. Kennedy. The two girls formed a friendship which was to continue through the years. They went on to Vassar College, Tish a couple of years ahead of Jacqueline.

Miss Baldrige majored in English "but did so badly that they told me to switch to psychology," she said.

After graduation she sought a State Department job abroad. She spoke French and Italian fluently, and read Spanish, but that wasn't enough.

"The first question they asked was whether I could type and take shorthand," she said, so she engaged a tutor and completed a year's business course in two months.

"I thought if I could get a job right away it would more than justify the added expense of private lessons, and it did," she said.

Her first post was in Paris where she was secretary to Mrs. David Bruce, whose husband was Ambassador to France, and where she received "enormously valuable training."

She returned to Washington when Bruce left Paris and spent a couple of years at a Government job which she could describe only as "intelligence."

But she preferred foreign service and applied to Time-Life publications for a job in Rome. It was a lucky decision.

When Mrs. Luce returned to the United States in 1956, Tish established herself in New York and in the newly-created job of public relations director for Tiffany's jewelry company.

Once more special studies were indicated. She enrolled in classes dealing with the history of design in china, silver and jewels and the history of art.

Released to television. The KMOX-TV list includes such productions as "All the King's Men" with Broderick Crawford; "The Caine Mutiny," with Humphrey Bogart and Van Johnson; "Born Yesterday," starring Judy Holliday and William Holden; "Death of a Salesman," with Fredric March, and "The Last Hurrah," starring Spencer Tracy.

A package of 20th Century-Fox films has been acquired by KTVI, all but one of the 61 in the group produced in 1949 or later and some of them only two years old. The first of these, "Come to the Stable," starring Loretta Young, will be scheduled for Dec. 13. Others on the KTVI list include Gregory Peck's "12 O'Clock High," Marlon Brando's "Viva Zapata," and Jeanne Crain's "Pinky."

A series of J. Arthur Rank (British) pictures, all of them made no longer ago than 1954, has been purchased by KPLR-TV and will begin making their appearance this month. Laurence Olivier will be seen in "Richard III," Alec Guinness in "The Horse's Mouth," Brigitte Bardot and Charles Boyer in "La Parisienne," and Ingrid Bergman in "Greatest Love."

From that day, her life stepped up from its normal brisk pace to a virtual gallop.

Her parents live here, where her father now is in business, but Tish decided "it would be unkind to inflict my telephone calls on them." She leased a bedroom apartment on fashionable Connecticut avenue, 10 minutes' drive from the White House.

Later she made a special trip to the White House to study the $100,000 gold-dipped silver collection bequeathed by the late Margaret Thomson Biddle.

She also found time for the writing which her Vassar teachers thought she could not do.

Each weekend, she related, she would grasp suitcase in one hand and electric portable typewriter in the other, and visit friends in the country.

"I can't write in the city," she explained. "I have to be able to see greenery."

Early last fall Mrs. Kennedy asked her old friend if she would take the job of social secretary "if my husband should win."

"You bet I will," Tish replied.

This was the first presidential election in which Tish could register to vote, she said, and despite her Republican background she cast her ballot for Senator Kennedy.

LETITIA BALDRIGE

Miss Baldrige discusses her new job at a press conference.

Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, then Ambassador to Italy and wife of the Time-Life publisher, had just arrived at Rome and needed an assistant who could type, take shorthand, speak Italian, supervise the Embassy, and cope with protocol. Tish's application was called to her attention.

"Ten days later I was in Rome, hired sight unseen," Miss Baldrige related.

There she found herself in a position comparable to that of an Ambassador's wife. She handled all the details of Embassy life, including deciding whom to seat "above the salt" at diplomatic functions. She enjoyed the work tremendously. She astonished the Romans with her flair for their language.

When Mrs. Luce returned to the United States in 1956, Tish established herself in New York and in the newly-created job of public relations director for Tiffany's jewelry company.

Once more special studies were indicated. She enrolled in classes dealing with the history of design in china, silver and jewels and the history of art.

Opening lead—six of spades.

HERE IS A HAND played by the World Bridge Olympic some years ago in which the defenders were supposed to defeat three notrump.

Very few of the East-West contestants succeeded in the effort. West was directed to lead the six of spades and the burden of defense thereupon fell to East.

The issue was largely decided on the very first trick, the outcome of the hand depending upon what East played on the jack of spades.

The proper defensive play is the four of spades, permitting the jack to win the trick. Against this defense South cannot make the contract.

Suppose declarer leads a diamond at trick two. West takes the king and returns a spade to the ace. East leads a high spade to force out the king, and still has the ace of diamonds as an entry card for his established spades. Declarer cannot garner more than eight tricks and must go down one.

East does not defeat the contract if he wins the spade lead with the ace and returns the queen. Declarer simply sets up his diamonds and the defenders cannot do better than take four tricks.

Nor can East stop three notrump by playing the queen of spades at trick one. South ducks the queen and the defense is once again helpless.

East should know from the bidding and the opening lead that declarer has the K-9-8-7 of spades. Since East has only one side entry card, he should duck the jack so as to retain maximum communication with West's hand.

In ducking, he signals with the highest card he can afford—the four of spades.

Yuletide Guests For St. Louisans

THE WEEKS between Thanksgiving and Christmas are crowded with comings and goings for St. Louis families. Dr. and Mrs. Robert Folger Solley of New York and their young son, Robert Jr., plan to spend Christmas with Mrs. Solley's mother, Mrs. L. Wade Childress, 630 West Polo drive, Clayton. Mrs. Solley will arrive Dec. 20 with her son and her niece, Miss Jane Childress, a student at Pine Manor Junior College. Dr. Solley will arrive two days later. Miss Childress is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding T. Childress, 3 Hortense place. The Childress's other daughter, Miss Lila Marshall Childress, Mrs. Solley's namesake, who is studying in London, will spend the holidays skiing in Austria.

MISS CHILDRESS . . . To Ski in Austria.

Mr. and Mrs. Fristoe Mullins, 9 Portland place, have had as their house guest Ernest Burton of New York. Mr. Burton, who left today, has been here for the English Springer Spaniel National Trials at Busch Wild Life Reservation. The Mullins expect home for the holidays their daughter, Miss Lisa Mullins, a student at the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Noroton, Conn., and their sons, Michael Fristoe Mullins, a freshman at Cornell University, and Birch Mullins, who attends the Portsmouth (R.I.) Priory School.

Mrs. Louis H. Egan, 24 Kingsbury place, will welcome for the Christmas holidays her daughter, Miss Patricia Egan, a resident of New York. Miss Egan is writing her Ph.D. thesis in art history for New York University. A Vassar graduate, she has taught art history not only at her own college, but also at Wellesley and Mount Holyoke.

Mrs. Egan's granddaughter, Mrs. Thomas Wynne Morris, will arrive home Dec. 16 with her husband to spend the Christmas holidays with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Gene Baldwin Starkloff, 5266 Westminster place. Mr. and Mrs. Morris (she was Miss Rebecca Starkloff) now live in Princeton, N.J., where he is a student at the university.

Dr. and Mrs. William A. Barker, 18 Kingsbury place, will take their four younger children, Miss Mary Claire, Louisa Lawrence, Michael Lawrence and Patrick Cole Barker, to ski at Aspen, Colo., during the vacation. The family will leave Dec. 20. The day after Christmas the Barkers will be joined in Aspen by Laurence Condie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Condie Jr.

After the holidays the children will return to St. Louis with Dr. Barker, but Mrs. Barker will spend a day or two in Salt Lake City with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Michael B. Kahle. Mr. Kahle is a junior at the University of Utah. Mrs. Kahle, the former Miss Gail Barker, made her debut last September at the University Club.

Mrs. John B. Kistner (Joanne Sullivan Wrape) has just returned to her home in Kenilworth, a suburb of Chicago, after a visit with her mother, Mrs. Harold J. Wrape, and Mr. Wrape, 4959 Maryland avenue.

The Thomas Hall Wagners of 63 Kingsbury place will have a Chicago Christmas. They are to visit their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hall Wagner Jr. Mrs. Wagner Jr. is the former Miss Kari Fremantel of Oslo, Norway.

Fifteenth Annual Peasant Bazaar

THE PRE-HOLIDAY HUSTLE and bustle that annually pervades the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Pirie, 420 Delmar road, Ladue, is again apparent. The reason is the fifteenth Peasant Bazaar to be held there Thursday and Friday from 1 to 10 o'clock for the benefit of the Animal Protective Association of St. Louis county, which will use the money for needed equipment.

Shop decorations and those for the rest of the house are in the making today by volunteers working under the direction of Miss Edith Mason. The patio and the shop, which occupies all the basement rooms, are being done in red and white striped material set off by greenery and red ornaments. Members of the Peasant Bazaar Auxiliary and their husbands have hung rattan Christmas trees, decorated with balls and stars, from the ceiling.

One day this week Miss Mason will coach a group of workers in the making of door wreaths, small trees and table centerpieces (with berries and plastic fruits) for their own houses.

A special bazaar feature this year will be a pet shop, not for pets themselves, but for handmade collars and leashes as well as brushes, lotions and animal food.

Handmade articles include jewelry, dresses, sweaters, mittens, wool cloth woven by Libby Crawford, and 30 kinds of cookies. Then there are to be yarns and wools from Scotland. By Friday even the decorations will be for sale.

Vinegars, spices and herb mixtures will be available for gourmets and in the Country Kitchen there will be brown bread, brown sugar coffee cakes and Danish kringles.

In Mr. and Mrs. Pirie's living room will be served, for a small fee, coffee and a slice of linzer torte, apple strudel, a hazelnut tart or some zauer krapfen.

Mrs. Henri Lison will be hostess, assisted by members of the auxiliary, and Miss Mason will decorate the table, using German wood figures lent by Mrs. Erica Geyer of Webster Groves.

Those assisting Mrs. Pirie for the two days will include Mrs. Edward Arthur, Mrs. Edward Ayre, Mrs. Arthur B. Baer, Mrs. Robert Brock, Mrs. Robert Wallace Carr, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. Harry Henry, Mrs. Edward Glick, Mrs. Fred Joseph, Mrs. James Goodall, Mrs. Leo Lundergan, Mrs. Quentin Just, Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus, Mrs. Eugene Enzinger, Mrs. James Broadwell, Mrs. George Greaney, Mrs. Peter Lurie, Mrs. Philip Rashbaum, Mrs. William Schmidt, Mrs. Robert J. Schoknecht, Mrs. Frank Simms, Mrs. Maurie Steinbeck, Mrs. Thomas Tebbetts, Mrs. Wylie Todd, Mrs. Erich Wagner, Mrs. Albert W. Wenhe, Mrs. Frederick Wehmiller, Mrs. Sidney Wolf, Mrs. Norman Vansasse, Mrs. Louis Kilpatrick and Mrs. Hugh Semple.

Elected To Office At Wellesley.

MISS MARGARET FLEISCHER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Fleischer, 524 Warren avenue, University City, has been elected social chairman of her residence hall at Wellesley College.

Chosen from members of the sophomore class in her dormitory, each social chairman works in conjunction with the vice president of her residence hall to plan house dances and informal parties with students from nearby men's colleges. Each social chairman also is a member of her House Council. Miss Fleischer was awarded freshman honors for outstanding academic achievement in her first year at Wellesley.

Planning Benefit House Tour

Three members of Alphi Chi Omega sorority, from left, MRS. JOHN SCHIFFMAN, MRS. VICTOR SPARLING and MRS. JACK A. BAIN, complete plans for the sorority's thirteenth annual Christmas house decorations tour Wednesday. Mrs. Schiffman and Mrs. Sparling are co-chairmen for the tour; Mrs. Bain is president of the St. Louis alumnae group. Proceeds will go to the St. Louis Society for Crippled Children.

OPINION

They Want to Adopt War Orphan

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WE ARE A YOUNG COUPLE with two sons, ages 2½ and 8 years. We are interested in adopting a little girl war orphan. We are able to have more children of our own but feel that we would also like to give a happy home to a child already born into an unfortunate environment. I am sure there must be other couples who share our feelings. Please tell us where we can write for information regarding this matter.

HOPEFUL COUPLE.

Write to Jane Russell, care of WAIF, Hollywood, Calif., or direct to the Women's Adoption International Fund, in care of the International Social Service, Inc., Geneva, Switzerland.

Dear Martha:

I HAVE JUST RETURNED from my bowling league and am sick at the pit of my stomach. The game went very well but how about the married woman, mother of four children, who had to run to the married man, father of three children, every time she made a strike? He told her she was wonderful by a pat in a place I don't think should be patted. I myself have spent 20 years at home making or trying to make a wonderful home for my husband and three sons. I made men of my boys but I cannot say the same for the man I married. For 20 years there have been other women but when I found that they were getting presents while I sewed patches on my kids' pants I got mad. I got my husband back but after fighting with the other five women I wonder if I gained or lost. Now, Martha, I have joined a bowling league and am enjoying life for the first time. HAPPY AT LAST.

Have fun. You deserve it after 20 years of living with a problem-child husband. As for the mother of four children who enjoys being a patty-cushion, she'll experience a different kind of strike when the man's wife finds out about this and knocks all her pins from under her.

Dear Martha Carr:

I JUST READ the letter signed "World's Loneliest Widow" in your column. You suggest several things these lonely old dears could do and no doubt they do them during the day. But it is dangerous to be out at night after dark. In the evenings I cook myself a good dinner, eat, clean the kitchen, read the paper, practice piano, play records, write letters, weave baskets, sew, make Christmas gifts, work on scrap books and watch TV. I am alone every night and I cannot find happiness alone. It is frightening to feel alone. You said there is little hope for women who will settle for nothing less than another husband. You are so right. I'm so hopeless and so lonely there doesn't seem much point in going on.

ANOTHER LONELY WIDOW.

If nothing else but another husband will make you happy, get out and look for one. But did you ever try counting your blessings instead of moaning about being alone? You have a home, enough means to cook yourself a good dinner, enjoy records and TV and make Christmas gifts. It sounds as though you could have a full life and enjoy yourself if you would rid yourself of the obsession that life isn't worth living unless it's lived by pairs.

Send a self-addressed stamped envelope for Martha's "Merry Christmas" leaflet, giving games, recipes and decorations for the holidays.

Child With Allergies

Dear Dr. Molner:

A THREE-YEAR-OLD CHILD has face and body terribly scratched and bleeding from allergies. He is allergic to eggs, wheat, rye, buckwheat, pork and cottonseed.

The problem is to get a proper diet without any of the above foods. (Two other children in the family have no diet problems.) What can you suggest? MRS. D.F.

IT'S NOT IMPOSSIBLE, and certainly not unusual, for one child to have a much more severe allergy than another in the same family.

In this particular case, in the list of bothersome foods, only two are very common ones—wheat and eggs. Eggs (useful mainly for their protein values) can easily be substituted for with cheese, poultry, fish, meat (except pork in this case) and milk.

The wheat allergy obviously means avoiding ordinary baked goods, since most of them use wheat flour and a lot of them include eggs.

Yet from the standpoint of nutritional diet, there are plenty of other cereals (either as breakfast food, bread or some cookies) which will give him the cereals (or grains) that he requires. A few examples are corn and corn products, rice, oatmeal and soy bean.

Avoid the things to which he is allergic. As he grows older, if he is protected from them, he may gradually build up a tolerance.

For instance, I once knew a pair of twins—one was allergic to wheat, the other to oats. Separate and special baby formulas had to be prepared for each of them. But they eventually outgrew the allergies, and now they can eat the foods that used to cause them to itch and scratch.

Dear Dr. Molner:

CAN ANGINA PECTORIS be detected only by means of the stethoscope? K.G.

No, you're on a false track. Angina pectoris is a symptom, a pain in the heart region, sometimes extending into the shoulder and arm. It's a symptom resulting from a heart deficiency. (Naturally there are plenty of other causes for pain in these regions, but the angina pain is usually severe and unmistakable.) Anyway, angina is not detected by the stethoscope. Indeed, the heart sounds (which are heard by the stethoscope) can be very normal in patients with angina.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Why Do Men Fall in Love?

By Adele Starbird

WHAT MAKES A MAN fall in love with a particular girl? The human race has been working on that problem for thousands of years.

The first hint, and it is a very broad hint indeed, that even in ancient times all women were not equally desirable is found in the Book of Genesis, where it is said that Jacob worked seven years for his future father-in-law with no other reward than the prospect of marrying Rachel at the end of his servitude. And the seven years "seemed unto him but a few days for the love he had unto her."

So Jacob, the tricky one, became, surprisingly enough, the first in a long line of Great Lovers which would include Tristan and Romeo, William Penn and Andrew Jackson, to mention a few.

Now the Bible does state that Rachel was beautiful and lovely, but that in itself is not a sufficient explanation for a love that lasted until death and beyond. For men have tired of beautiful women, whereas ugly women, even in our day, have rocked thrones.

Why and how did they attract men? Barrie said it was charm, Elinor Glyn came up with "It" and a later generation spoke glibly of "S.A." All of these efforts left us right where we were, in a fog. They were trying to define a cause in terms of the results.

This is a subject upon which I have been doing research most of my life, having had at least 30,000 girls under observation, and I think that I am entitled to an opinion. At the end of all this time I am sure of only two things, and I shall go into that later.

Now a woman writer has had the idea of interviewing men to find out what makes a girl popular. It strikes me as a poor idea, for men don't even know what they like, much less why they like it, and that goes for food, dress and women. The only way you can be sure of what they like is by watching what they eat, what colors they go for and which girls they date. Then you will observe that any resemblance between what they say they like and what they choose is purely coincidental. The woman is a fool who governs her hair-do or her dress by any man's stated tastes.

The men who were interviewed did come up with six rules, three of which I consider the bunk; the other three are valid for all time—which makes me wonder if the woman writer didn't invent them.

The most perfect expression of such enjoyment I witnessed on a commuter train in New Jersey. A girl whom I guessed to be second generation Italian was in the seat in front of me. A young man got on at one of the stops, and sat down by her, evidently by pre-arrangement.

I have rarely seen such a welcome, though it would be difficult to describe. The effect was that of a puppy wriggling with delicious joy, and yet she didn't move or touch him. It was a kind of radiance that enveloped him in its warmth, it was the wholeness of her look and its admiration that made an ordinary guy seem twice as big as life and every inch a man. On the whole trip into New York she never once turned to look out of the window or at any other passenger.

That was also the technique, they said, of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, slab-sided, raw-boned, and for many years the reigning toast of cafe society. When she entered the Stork Club or the Colony with a man, she took in the crowd with one swift glance, after which she never looked at anybody but her date.

This in fact is the second rule of the six. "Hang on to his eyes." There is, however, danger in that rule. Some men are shy, and uncomfortable under an Ancient Mariner gaze. It is one thing to give a man your full attention, and always to be recommended; it is quite another to fix him with such a stare that he begins to wonder if he's the Headless Horseman.

IF YOU WANT to capture the excitement and drama of the new earrings this season, just try on a pair of those new long, very slender slim-jim earrings. For example—a row of diamonds dangling from a square-cut diamond or an Oriental-looking single cabochon suspended from a tapering strand of small pave diamonds.

This slim-jim earring is interpreted in costume jewelry, too, in many variations—in narrow, fringe-like rows of fake diamonds; in a silver-like row of jewel-color stones; or in an almost invisible platinum-finished chain with a dangling oval baroque pearl.

BERRIES IN FROSTING

A small amount of frozen raspberries or strawberries (thawed) may be added to a creamy vanilla cake frosting. Add the drained berries first, then as much of the juice as is necessary for good consistency.

BUTLER HALL STATE COLLEGE

Dear Mom and Dad,

Know why I've been writing to you more often these last few weeks? It's this Remington Quiet-Riter Eleven Portable! My roommate lets me use it under protest, so I guess I'll have to give you a sales talk to get me one of my own for Christmas. No kidding, I really need a Remington Portable now that I've found out what it can do for my grades!

For one thing, it makes homework lots easier and with the time I save, I even do optional assignments I avoided before. The pros are giving me better marks, too.

Now don't let anybody steer you to any other typewriter but a Remington Quiet-Riter Eleven. Among other things, it's the only one with a roller 11-inches long so I can work out charts and graphs on it. And it's the only one that makes setting indents and columns for my math and chem work so darned easy and fast. You can see for yourself how sharp and clear it types...even for me.

Well, my roommate wants his Remington back now, so I'll close without asking for anything else for Christmas but a Remington Portable...the Quiet-Riter Eleven, remember!

Love and xxxx's to you and dad...

Ted.

P.S. THE PORABLE OF THE YEAR IS REMINGTON! and here's where to buy yours:

Penny for penny, feature for feature, the typewriter to buy is Remington. Superb quality and year-after-year durability are built into every model. 4 models—6 colors. Budget terms, too!

Free of extra cost: luggage-style carrying case, color typing chart & course.

NEW YORK (AP).
THINGS A COLUMBIAN might never know if he didn't open his mail:
FIRE, one of man's oldest foes, is still a billion-dollar enemy in this country. . . . Every 15 seconds—four times each minute—fire breaks out somewhere in the United States.

HAIR EXPERTS are worried because baldness is on the increase. . . . If it is any consolation to them, we know at least one home where the increase has slowed down—because it can go as slow as far as it can go.

BRITISH SCIENTISTS found that people of high intelligence are more likely to get bored with routine jobs. . . . The nice thing about this theory is it enables us all to feel like geniuses.

A POLL showed 40,000,000 Americans favor abolishing boxing because of the danger of lasting injury.

IN RURAL FRANCE a girl tactfully slips a handful of oats in her suitor's pocket as a sign that his offer of marriage has been rejected.

ONE OUT OF EVERY SIX high school students now speaks at least one foreign language. . . . The order of popularity: Spanish, French, German and Italian.

THERE ARE 560 SEEDS in the average large watermelon. . . . (Please do not send us collect telegrams asking how many seeds there are in a pumpkin. We have not been informed.)

Steady Growth of Record Clubs

By Jim Flanagan
The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch
Special Dispatch
NEW YORK, Dec. 5.
THE RECORD CABINET is defining a host's tastes in music to his visitors today in the same way the titles on his bookshelf reveals his literary acumen. The record collection in turn is a point of pride to the host who will enthusiastically show friends that he has "all" the Broadway musicals, or a complete collection of Beethoven symphonies. Amassing such collections is, of course, no mean feat, but it is made considerably easier by the existence of record clubs.

These clubs, which have grown simultaneously with the rise in all record sales, have adopted the methods of book clubs in getting the latest releases to their members and in the recruiting of new members. Full-page ads in magazines and newspapers featuring the attractive covers of 40-or-so albums suited to every musical taste and the offer of free records—if one acts now.

Once the member is advised that he must take four or five selections in his first year of membership. This has the obvious effect of keeping out the something for nothing character, although quite a few do persist.

The idea of sending new musical selections each month at list prices to members of a record club is the brain child of Goddard Lieverman, who is now president of Columbia Records. His Columbia Record club is by far the most successful of the subscription people, musical or literary. With a million and a quarter members the Columbia club has three times the enrollment of the Book-of-the-Month Club.

Now in its fifth year, the club boasts of members as far away as India and proudly proclaims that it makes up an "important" part of Columbia Records. The club may offer any Columbia release and also it has the rights to Mercury and Verve records.

RCA Victor has, since 1957, been meeting the challenge but that company is not yet willing to release figures on its membership.

The clubs run on the same billing principles and make much the same appeal to gain members. Each month the clubs send out a magazine describing the selections for that particular month and asking that the member take either the principal selection, an alternate, or none at all. The catch, in taking none at all, is that a card must be sent back to the club refusing the records. Many people forget to send this card back in time and therefore receive the current selection automatically.

THE CLUBS are broken down according to musical tastes. RCA individualizes its clientele into either the RCA Victor Metropolitan Opera Club, the Society of Great Music, or the Popular Album club. Columbia breaks down differently into Classical, Jazz, Broadway, Movies, Television, and Musical Comedies and their popular music fixture which they coyly name the Listening and Dancing club. Both clubs are divided into Stereo and Monaural, but Columbia's stereo club only breaks down to Classical and Popular.

Columbia also has a billing division which doesn't make a selection each month, but is sent whatever record is the current offering. These people, who want to build a record collection, but who put sublime trust in their record club to make the selection for them, are in the "automatic" billing group.

The clubs, of course, take great care in picking each month's selection so the automatic group is not taking merely pot luck. The story is told of one woman who was embarrassed because she mispronounced the names of composers in the record stores so she joined a record club to escape the smug corrections of the slightly superior clerks.

Some of the more esoteric book clubs have been getting into the act by offering recordings of poets reading their own works. These offerings come from the now famous Caedmon poetry series.

This series was originated by two New York girls while attending Hunter College a number of years ago. The story is well known how they recorded the late Welsh poet, Dylan Thomas, reading his poetry and then proceeded to add other poets, and actors reading a wide range of literature. Caedmon is now engaged in recording the complete works of Shakespeare and is starting the Shakespeare Record Club. It confidently estimates a membership of 20,000 in the first year.

Going for it, of course, is the fact that many libraries and colleges will join and take the complete set. The job of recording the works, by internationally famous actors, will take four years.

Members will receive the recording of Macbeth as an introductory gift and then will be required to take four plays in the first year. The Shakespeare club will offer a substantial saving on each album, it claims. It too will use the device of bonus records for loyal members who stay on after the first year.

NBC-TV and Walt Disney have concluded an agreement by which the network will use Disney's talent for color artistry in NBC-TV programs. Under the agreement, Disney will introduce to television a whole new world of color with the programs to be produced for NBC-TV. Specifically, he will produce a weekly series of full-hour programs, with himself as host. He also will create a number of special programs in color.

JULIE PROWSE . . . Guest on Perry Como's show on KSD-TV Wednesday night.

solid color Thursday night, Mary Martin's "Peter Pan" from 6:30 to 8:30, followed by the Ernie Ford and Groucho Marx half-hour programs.

A NEW YEAR'S DAY special, "Headliners," is being scheduled by NBC-TV. Stars will include George Gobel, Peggy Lee and Frankie Avalon.

ARTHUR GODFREY, host of Allen Funt's "Candid Camera" program on CBS-TV, and Funt have been having differences. A spokesman for Godfrey, trying to minimize the clash, said, "Any differences of opinion are designed to help the show. There have been some differences on production matters and on what 'Candid Camera' sequences to use."

JACK PAAR has agreed to do an all-new show for Friday night, rather than a "Best of Paar" repeat, in order to participate in NBC-TV's "color TV weekend" plan. Other programs added to the color schedule will be the "Special for Women," 3 p.m. Thursday; and "True Story," "Saturday Prom" and "The Nation's Future," all Saturday programs. There will be three hours of
